Three Officials Arrested By FBI as Inquiry Finds 'Irregularities.'

UNCOVERED IN RE-AUDIT

Maryland Explosive Factory and Two Subsidiaries Put In Hands of Service.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The navy took possession today of the plant of Triumph Explosives, Inc., at Elkton, Md., and two subsidiaries at Milford, Del., and the White House announced that the FBI had arrested a plant vice president and an army and navy inspector on bribery charges.

A White House statement said the inspectors were charged with accepting bribes in the guise of "service fees" and that the navy's "preliminary investigation indicates that more than $1,000,000 in management 'irregularities' may be involved."

The navy took over the plants under terms of a presidential executive order which said it was desirous that they be operated "effectively and safely."

Those arrested, the White House said, were Josef Ben Decker, executive vice president of Triumph; J. A. McCambridge, until recently civilian army inspector at the Triumph plant, and Reginald Gregory, chief civilian navy inspector at Triumph.

The two subsidiaries taken under governmental control are the Milford Ordnance company and the Sussex Ordnance company. All have been placed in charge of Commander A. B. McCrary, acting for the army and navy.

Details of the bribery charges were not immediately available from the White House. It said more arrests were expected.

The arrest of Decker, McCambridge and Gregory, the White House said, resulted from an audit by the renegotiation section of the navy procurement office which "uncovered numerous instances" of bribery in the Triumph company management.

Schools Go All-Out In Scrap Drive

Brinkerhoff, Hedges and Senior High Ahead In Trophy Race.

Mansfield schools entered the second day of their scrap drive today in competition for the News-Journal trophy with piles of salvage materials rapidly growing to miniature mountains on the school grounds.

The city's schools were joined today in the all-out search for scrap by merchants in the downtown area who placed scrap from their business establishments on the sidewalk in front of their doors.

Trucks were to pick up the materials in the business district after 4 p. m. today. Boy Scouts were visiting each business place to check the amount of available scrap. Funds from the sale of the salvage materials will go to the War Chest and the Richland Victory Civic committee.

Carl L. Stough, county salvage chairman, said Brinkerhoff, Hedges and Senior high school apparently were ahead last night in the amount of scrap collected this week.

He estimated the Senior high collection at two tons and the Brinkerhoff and Hedges scrap piles at about one ton each. Other buildings will be checked tonight and every night until the deadline Friday at 6 p. m. The News-Journal trophy will be awarded on the basis of scrap collected since Monday morning of this week.

Schools which gathered huge quantities of scrap last week may apply it toward their goal in a two-week campaign in which Supt. of Schools W. L. Miller will award an "S" banner to the school with the largest per pupil collection.

The scrap campaign at Senior high was spurred this morning at assembly when 300 members of the "M" association and Vocational club challenged other pupils in the school to equal their campaign efforts.

W. W. Michey spoke in behalf of the "M" association and vocational pupils, and his challenge was accepted by Principal Glenn G. Rohleder, representing the remaining 900 pupils in the school.

At 9 a. m. today members of the association placed five pounds of scrap each on the big pile at the high school stadium. Boys riding in five trucks then began making calls for scrap which had already been promised them at homes.

St. Peter's school which was not in session yesterday because of the Columbus day observance launched its drive this morning.

SEEK RECRUITS

Army Unit to Arrive in City Soon For Youths 18 and 19.

Two WAAC officers are making the tour in an effort to enlist young women for the Women's Auxiliary corps.

Various branches of army service are open to boys—air force, signal corps, field artillery, cavalry, infantry, armored forces, quartermaster corps, ordnance, chemical warfare, medical and military police services.

U. S. Lost These Cruisers In Solomons

U. S. Navy has announced the loss of the three heavy cruisers, the Astoria, top, the Quincy, center, and the Vincennes, below, during the early stages of the Solomon Islands battle. The three ships were mortally hit along with the Australian cruiser Canberra in a naval fight with the Japanese off Savo Island the night of Aug. 8-9. The navy said that while most of the personnel aboard the three American warships had been saved, there were "many casualties" among the officers and enlisted men, totaling an estimated 2,851. Among the officers lost was Captain Samuel N. Moore of Washington, shown above, skipper of the U. S. S. Quincy, who went down with his ship.

County's Biggest Army Quota To Receive Exams This Week

Induction of Richland county's record quota of men to fill the October draft call will begin Thursday at Fort Hayes, Columbus, with Board 1 sending the first contingent.

Beginning Thursday, a group will go to Columbus from Richland county almost daily until the middle of next week for their final physical examinations and induction. Boards 1 and 3 will send their inductees in four groups while the Board 2 men will report in one contingent.

Men who are accepted at Fort Hayes will immediately be inducted into the army and granted automatic two-week furloughs to permit them to return home and put their personal affairs in order before starting their training. Inductees who want to leave for camp as soon as they are accepted, will not return to the city after their induction.

The Richland county quota for October is the largest ever set up for the county boards in a single month. It will not be filled until the first week in November, however, because of the two-week furlough granted inductees.

The county boards have tentative figures for their November quota which will be considerably below the October totals.

LAVAL WARNED

Hitler Demands Suppression of Anti-German Moves.

MOSCOW—(AP)—A Tass dispatch from Geneva quoted "diplomatic sources" as reporting today that during Pierre Laval's recent trip to Paris he was handed a Hitler ultimatum demanding that he completely surpress the anti-German movement in France by the end of 1942 or yield all France, including now unoccupied territory, to control of a German commissioner.

Maps Speedy Organization of Senior High 'Victory Corps'

Plans for speedy organization of the high school "victory corps" were outlined by Glenn G. Rohleder, principal at Mansfield Senior high school, at a teachers' meeting yesterday and at a meeting of the student assembly this morning.

Objectives of all student organizations should be changed or re-worded so that pupils and school will be in keeping with the war effort, Rohleder explained.

The victory corps is divided into five service divisions; air, land, sea, production and community, Rohleder said, adding that insignias will be worn by each group. It is hoped to have an "induction" ceremony on Oct. 23, the night of the Mansfield-Massillon game. Insignias would be presented at that time.

The principal emphasized that membership in the victory corps is entirely voluntary. Parents must give their approval before a student pledges.

Pupils were told that membership in the corps will not qualify them for armed service. The entire program is organized for the sole purpose of making school children more conscious of the war.

"We have for some time been doing many of the things listed in the pamphlet concerning the vic-

MORE TYPHOID HITS ONTARIO

With 5 Afflicted, Springfield School Closes Cafeteria Pending Investigation.

Three new typhoid fever cases, including one in Mansfield, were reported today while Dr. W. B. Wild, city-county health commissioner, and his aids sought causes for the outbreak of the malady last week among pupils of the Springfield township centralized school at Ontario.

With five definite cases and six suspected cases recorded, school officials yesterday ordered the temporary closing of the school cafeteria pending analysis by the state board of health of cultures obtained from cafeteria workers by health department nurses.

Meanwhile, parents of children in the Ontario district are being asked to authorize immunization of all pupils, a course vehemently urged by Dr. Wild.

Samples of water from wells used by homes where the malady exists also have been submitted to the state board for analysis. A complete survey of foodstuffs, milk supply, and possible exposure to the disease is being made.

Although Commissioner Wild does not anticipate the fever will attain epidemic proportions he is strongly advising immunization of all children, not only in the affected region but throughout the county.

BLACK-OUT TONIGHT

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Final preparations were being made today for the blackout of Columbus' Downtown-East Side-Bexley-Hanford area tonight. The trial precedes a county-wide test which will be held in the near future, Commander Paul R. Gingher of the citizens defense corps said.

HOUSE, SENATE LEADERS SEE FAST ACTION

Respond Quickly to Stand of Roosevelt That Younger Men Are Needed.

WAR WORK PATTERN SET

President Calls For Voluntary Compliance, But Warns Laws May Be Needed.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The war department today asked congress for immediate enactment of legislation to reduce the draft age to 18 in line with President Roosevelt's endorsement of that proposal in his radio address last night.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt's declaration of the "inevitable" and "important" need for lowering the draft age to 18 years gave congress the signal today for action on this military phase of the pressing manpower problem.

Mr. Roosevelt, in a half-hour "fireside chat" outlined the immediate steps that must be taken under a voluntary program to "ration manpower" for farm and war industries. He appraised American spirit as "unbeatable" and asserted that in war production the nation is forging ahead of her enemies.

But his statements on the necessity for amending the selective service act to strengthen the armed forces with younger men most directly concerned congress.

"I believe that it will be necessary to lower the present minimum age limit for selective service from 20 years down to 18," the president said.

"We have learned how inevitable that is—and how important to the speeding up of victory."

The chief executive's statement cleared the way for the house and senate to act on bills already introduced or to place other measures in the hopper aimed at the same objectives.

Both senate and house leaders predicted speedy action on the proposal to lower the draft age. Sen. Gurney (R., S. D.), author of a senate bill to draft 18 and 19 year olds, said he would request the senate military affairs committee to begin hearings on his measure at once.

Reports that no action would be taken until after the November election brought a denial last week from the house military affairs committee which has yet to hold hearings on the draft bill before that body.

The president's call for volun-

Jap Armada on Way to Battle Zone, Report

American Admiral Declares U. S. Will 'Hold and Expand' Solomons Grip Despite Loss of 3 Cruisers In Early Landing Action.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The navy announced today that U. S. Marines had succeeded in enlarging their positions on Guadalcanal island in the Solomon islands during two days of offensive fighting in which the Japanese had "many casualties."

(By Associated Press)

President Roosevelt's disclosure that Allied strategy calls for "new offensives against Germany and Japan" was followed today by Chinese reports that a big Japanese armada including four aircraft carriers and seven battleships had been sighted "some time ago" en route toward the South Pacific.

Almost simultaneously, in Washington, Rear Admiral John S. McCain, lately a naval air commander in the southwest Pacific, told newsmen confidently that "we can hold the Solomons and expand them."

Speaking at Secretary Knox's press conference, Admiral McCain said American forces in the strategic archipelago had already shown "sufficient superiority in material and men" to maintain and enlarge their grip on the islands.

The admiral said that from Aug. 21 to Sept. 17 the Japanese lost 133 planes over Guadalcanal island to 25 American planes—a ratio of five to one.

A Reuters (British news agency) dispatch from Chungking, China's war-time capital, quoted a Chinese military spokesman as saying that the Japanese fleet was observed steaming toward the South seas battle theater.

The report, if true, suggested that the Japanese were diverting their major naval strength to meet the United Nations offensive heralded by Mr. Roosevelt, powerfully reinforcing their badly damaged forces in the southwest zone of operations.

In the Solomon island campaign alone, the enemy's known losses total 38 ships sunk or damaged, against a loss of nine American warships—three cruisers, four transports and two destroyers.

The navy in Washington said late yesterday that the U. S. cruisers Quincy, Vincennes and Astoria were sunk by Japanese gunfire and torpedoes while protecting the landing of American reinforcements in the Tulagi-

WINTER: Freezing Weather Descends on Caucasus Front

(By United Press)

MOSCOW—Bitter winter weather gripped the Mozdok area of the eastern Caucasus today as armored trains blasted out a path for the advancing Red army.

The defenders of Stalingrad beat off German attacks and set themselves for a renewed grand scale assault against the ruins they now had held for 50 days.

Pravda, the Communist party organ, published pictures of Red army men fighting in the Mozdok area. They were wearing winter battle dress, with heavy great coats and fur caps, with flaps down and fastened over their ears.

The cold in the Mozdok area, in the foothills of the Caucasus mountains, already was becoming intense, dispatches said. Normally, heavy blizzards begin in that area by the middle of next month, but ice coats the narrow trails weeks earlier and makes traveling over them almost impossible.

A big battle raged in the Mozdok area south of the Terek river, where the Germans, fighting time as well as the attacking Russians, were trying to drive to the nearby Grozny oil fields.

The Soviet noon communique reported both Russian and German attacks inside Stalingrad. The Germans tried again to break through a factory settlement in northwest Stalingrad. They were beaten off and 250 of them were killed.

Fifty German tanks and 3,000 men attacked in the same area yesterday, breaking a three-day lull in the battle. They gained slightly, but at the prohibitive price of 2,000 men killed and 20 tanks destroyed.

The battle raged with un-

OFFER: British Urge Joint Unshackling of War Prisoners

(By United Press)

LONDON—Prime Minister Winston Churchill revealed in the house of commons today that Great Britain had urged Germany through Switzerland to stop shackling British prisoners and announced that if Germany yielded Britain would at once stop shackling German prisoners in reprisal.

It had been reported that negotiations were in progress which would end the shackeling of British prisoners by the Germans, and the shackeling of German prisoners in retaliation.

Addressing the house of commons, Churchill denied the German charge that the government had countenanced a general order to tie German prisoners captured during the recent raid on Dieppe.

"Such process, however, may be necessary from time to time under stress of circumstances and may be in the best interests of the safety of the prisoners themselves," he said.

Churchill announced that the government had protested to Germany through the neutral Swiss government against Germany's breach of Article II of the Geneva convention for the protection of war prisoners, and had urged Germany to desist.

"In these circumstances the counter-measures of a similar nature which the government felt forced to take will be immediately withdrawn," Churchill said.

Germany started last Thursday to shackle British prisoners taken in the Dieppe raid, on the allegation that a small group of British

Young Mother Sees Suicide As Solution

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The papers were full of war news—the landing of the Commandos at Dieppe, Russian war news, Egyptian war news. On the inside of the paper was a bit of incidental war news evidently not considered of much importance.

A pretty 16-year-old girl, who saw no way out of her tragedy but suicide, threw herself from the four story window of a Washington apartment house. She had come to the end of all things, it seemed to her. She was unmarried and she was going to be a mother. Terrifying experience for a girl of 16 under the happiest circumstances. But in this girl's case, only black despair faced her.

Her lover, a soldier not many years older than she, couldn't get a furlough to come home and do the right thing for this unhappy young creature. So her mother and sister went with her to his army post, not far from Washington, to see if the authorities there would not allow the ceremony to be performed by the chaplain.

Meanwhile the boy had got into trouble. When the girl, her mother and sister arrived at camp, the boy was under punishment. No, he couldn't be married. Discipline was discipline and it was no time for relaxing rules for a soldier who was not a credit to his uniform.

They returned to Washington, the stricken three—the 16-year-old girl who was going to face motherhood unmarried, the wide-eyed young sister who knew there was trouble in the family and hoped things were going to turn out all right, and the tight-lipped little mother, so crushed and respectable.

Not much was said on the journey back to Washington. The 16-year-old girl who had hoped to be married twisted her hands on the way home but didn't say anything. When they came to the door of the apartment house where they lived, she dashed ahead, ran up the stairs to the fourth floor and flung herself out of the window—that seemed the only solution to her. She was taken to a hospital, dying.

Two thousand years have passed since the Great Teacher said: "Let him who is without sin cast the first stone." And though the human race has become more brutal, more dreadful in the business of exterminating each other in warfare, the quality of mercy toward girls who, like this poor child, saw no way out but suicide, has grown more humane.

All faiths have considered the plight of the unmarried mother. The Florence Crittenton home has turned a new page for her. She is received with kindness and taught to support herself and her child. All churches consider her case with mercy.

Housewives Pledge New War on Dust And Dirt In Home

Another war has been declared. A war against deterioration, dust, dirt and grime. The battle fronts are in the rooms of every home throughout the nation.

The war was declared by officers of the consumers division of the Office of Price Administration. The enlisted fighters are the housewives of the nation.

Housewives enlisted by signing a pledge to "take care of the things I have . . ."

The battles have been raging on millions of fronts for several months . . . but victory can only be achieved by continual hammering in every nook and corner in every room in every home.

Floors must be kept in good repair. Furniture must not be neglected. Clothes should be given the utmost care. Not one sector of the huge campaign must be allowed to remain stagnant.

To aid the embattled housewives of the nation, scores of experts have prepared "articles of war for the women of America." Some of these follow.

Wax and polish your floors regularly. This is not a luxury, but rather a necessity. Conveniently glassed wax and polish can be purchased anywhere and it is easy to apply.

Take care of your screens. Use your vacuum cleaner to dust them off. Wash them with kerosene and dry with a soft cloth.

Use your vacuum cleaner. Follow the directions given and use the handy attachments. Scores of things can be accomplished about the house with the many attachments.

Polish and wax your furniture. Get every part of the piece of furniture . . . especially the back. Handy, small bottles of wax and polish save time and money.

Repair your household mechanical articles. Call in an expert repairman if needed . . . but keep 'em running.

Keep moths and dirt out of your rugs. Keep them clean and they will last for the duration. Sun the cushions from the upholstered chairs . . . but don't leave in a strong sun and bake them.

Blinds are important. Clean them regularly. Re-wind the shade.

Don't have a spring housecleaning once a year. Have a housecleaning every day . . . a thorough one at least once a week.

Train Child In Club Work

By GARY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

WARTIME HAS made the 4-H clubs more useful than ever before. When I was a boy on the farm such a thing as a 4-H club was unheard of.

Thanks to the 4-H clubs for girls and boys, and to the Future Farmers of America for older boys, not only are youngsters on the farm and in rural areas learning useful skills in producing and preserving foods but they are learning to be good civic leaders in their community. Also boys and girls in the larger towns and cities are enrolling in these clubs. These clubs accomplish a great deal by cultivating wholesome pride in rural homes and in advancement of rural life in areas away from crowded cities; even at cultivating in city folks a more wholesome attitude toward country people.

Helps Develop Personality

Besides, the 4-H club is a mighty force in developing personality. It brings many youths of the same age-range together, motivating them to achieve with satisfaction, to express themselves, and to make friends. When a 4-H girl meets a 4-H boy they have strong interests in common outside themselves. The 4-H club also gives special recognition for all services performed by its members for the church, school and community, thus binding the home and 4-H work with other activities.

As with Scouts, Campfire, Y-clubs and the like, one constant problem is to find leadership. This is especially acute in wartime. Those who have ability to lead and faithfully do so, render a service far greater than they suppose.

One Citizen's Contribution

Mrs. Ben Ellett, of Hampton, Ill., a mother of several young children, writes:

"We began with 13 members, the second year we had 17, and last year 21. All three years we have been an Achievement club. The last two years we also have been a 100% club . . .

"Our population here in Hampton is about 525 and I think there are 100 families. We expect a membership of 35 or more in the two clubs this year. The older club will all be high school age and may include a few boys. Since there are no boys' clubs in Hampton and I can find no man to lead one, I will be leading both clubs.

"I will use my same assistant leaders from last year in my older group and will use Mary Jane Frazier (six years in 4-H) and Marjorie Tompkins (five years in 4-H) in the Junior club. These two girls were junior leaders last year, a system I have worked out for training leaders I can't find among the adults. It is a shame more women do not train for 4-H work. The state university gives every opportupnity for free training and materials. I have learned so much that helps me in my home."

Right now, as never before, women and men of integrity, dependability and leadership are needed to guide our young people in the 4-H clubs. Scouts, Campfire, Y clubs and various church groups.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"You seem to want to broadcast things yourself," the gangster sneered, still whispering. "But remember, you promised something too."

"I'm not going back on it. Is that all you want me to do?"

"That will be enough. You know who, and he will tell you what to do."

"When I can see him, I'll tell him," Carolyn whispered. Then she raised her voice in a tremulous call: "Auntie Madge!"

Dicky and Miss Whitlock rushed out with me. We unbound Carolyn quickly and took her back to the room we had just quitted. The gangster's sneering voice followed her.

"Not even a goodbye kiss, Carola?"

"May I tell him off, Dad?"

"Say anything you like," my father said, with utter loathing in his voice. Leaving the door ajar, Dicky went through it.

"As soon as he starts to answer me, close this door," he said. "No use subjecting the little girl to any more."

We almost held our breaths as Dicky strode to where the gangster stood chained.

"For your information, rate," he began, his words like rattling hailstones, "you will waste your breath telling anything about the young lady who has just left you for you never will get a chance to tell anybody else anything. You are going from here to a Federal detention court. You never will see the outside world again.

"The young lady knows you never can harm her again, so now you have no hold over her. Your only chance of cheating the chair is to come clean. Shut that door!"

The last words were a shout, and Miss Whitlock obeyed him promptly. Then Dicky dashed through the door, closing it after him.

"The guards will settle him," he said. "Better let him stay there by his lonesome until we all get upstairs, don't you think, Dad?"

"By all means," my father said. "Come, Margaret and Richard. Miss Whitlock, will you see to Carol?"

That he meant "Will you see that she does not get away?" was clear, and a purplish flush stained Carolyn's face.

But she said nothing until my father had led us out into a narrow corridor from which opened a series of other doors.

My father took us to a comfortable sitting room, and when we were seated he pressed a button below a speaking tube in the wall.

"Gus?" he said, then went on, "Get your men, unchain the fellow and lock him up again. But look out for him! What's that? Oh, yes, he can talk to him first. I'll see him outside immediately."

I wondered if it was my imagination, or did my father's eyes scan my face warily as he went to the door? But I was curious enough to bend forward and look.

But that one glance was enough to give me a staggering surprise.

For the man outside who had summoned my father, and who, inadvertently I was sure, had not stood far enough aside to escape being seen, was my brother-cousin, Jack Bickett!

- ½ cup irradiated evaporated milk and
- ½ cup water mixed, or
- 1 cup fresh milk

Blend flour and salt with a little cold milk. Scald remaining milk, add flour and salt, blend and cook until very thick, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, add cheese and well-beaten egg yolks and stir until smooth, then fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and turn into a greased baking dish. Set dish in pan containing 1 inch hot water. Bake in slow oven (325 degrees F.) until set, about 1 hour.

Lamb Patties.

- Ground lamb patties
- Salt, pepper
- Bacon

Most meat markets sell chopped lamb patties wrapped in bacon slices, ready for broiling. Broil with halved tomatoes and cooked and halved potatoes that have been dipped in melted fat, and serve on large platter with carrot sticks and celery. Link pork sausages may be broiled at the same time, if liked.

Cake.

- 1¾ cups sifted cake flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- ¼ teaspoon baking soda
- 2 teaspoons cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon allspice
- ¼ teaspoon cloves
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup shortening
- ½ cup sugar
- ½ cup honey
- 2 eggs
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- ⅓ cup milk

Frosting.

- 1⅓ cups (1 can) sweetened condensed milk
- 4 squares unsweetened chocolate
- 1 tablespoon water
- 1 tablespoon vanilla

For Cake: mix and sift flour, baking powder, baking soda, spices and salt. Cream shortening, add sugar gradually, creaming all the while, then add honey and blend mixture carefully. Beat eggs until thick and lemon colored, add to creamed mixture, and if fixture seems to curdle, pay no attention. Add vanilla to milk and add sifted ingredients alternately with milk and vanilla to creamed mixture. Bake in greased, floured square pan in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) from 50 to 60 minutes. Take out, let stand five minutes, turn from pan, and when cool, spread on following frosting: melt chocolate over hot water, add sweetened condensed milk and cook 5 minutes. Add 1 tablespoon water and vanilla, cool slightly, and spread on cake.

TO MUCH AT STAKE

DEFENDING against a hostile slam bid, your job is to set the contract at once if you get a chance. Trying to beat it an extra trick or so is too risky business, when you weigh what is involved. The extra trick or two cannot be worth while when there is so much at stake which you jeopardize.

Because of his partner's double, West led the suit dummy had bid—which with many players is definitely a convention in the case of a slam. But the diamond he led was the 3, not the 6. When the declarer played low from the dummy and the K won, East decided that his partner had led a singleton. So, instead of laying down his club A, he decided to try for a ruff — terrible bridge — and returned the diamond 7 to the Q. Now just see what that cost him.

South scored three high hearts in dummy and four diamonds, discarding three clubs and a spade. He came to his hand with the heart 4 to the A and then led the heart 9, discarding the club 10 from dummy. East held the spade K-8 and saw the dummy's A-Q. To hold those, he had to discard the Club A. That made the club K good, and the spade 9 to the A produced the final trick. East was impossibly squeezed after his costly mistake.

If East had not doubled, the normal spade lead would have produced one defensive trick each in spades, diamonds and clubs, setting the contract two.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, Oct. 14.

A prosperous and happy day is forecast from the prevailing astral influences. It should be a fortunate time for social, domestic and affectional affairs, if steps in this direction are moderately and conservatively taken. Business and new enterprises should thrive under an aggressive speeding up. All pertaining to art, literature and all cultural attainments should thrive.

Those whose birthday it is may look forward to a pleasant and prosperous year, with all things progressing toward security and well established lines. New projects and enterprises should respond to this consolidation of interests but it would be wise not to be carried away by an unjustifiable outlay.

A child born on this day should be talented and versatile in many forms of art as well as business, such as advertising, selling agencies and promotion.

Suggestions For You Busy Women

By MME QUI VIVE

No matter what the state of this mad world may be, no woman can afford to go to seed. She mustn't slack up. Appearance has much to do with spirit and morale. We must pay more than usual attention to health habits.

It is the way of woman to wail about the time it takes to fight the old gentleman with the scythe and the long white whiskers, he whose aim seems to be to put silver threads in her hair, criss-cross lines around her eyes. Keeping fit and looking fit are builders of self respect. It isn't vanity that makes a woman tint her lips, arrange her hair beautifully, wear becoming clothes. She does that for the sake of her soul and the approval of her family. They want to be proud of her. She must not fail them.

Every woman, be she wage earner or boss of the domestic works, can spare a half hour at bedtime for the brief attentions that are necessary to keep her within finger touch of her youth. If she does these chores she will be conscience free, and the results will be priceless.

It is next to impossible for a busy woman to have a leisurely bath in the morning. If she is a career girl she must scuttle off to the job. If she is the mistress of the home, there will be the man to get off to his work, the children to school, all of them asking where is this and where is that. But at bedtime one can rest in the warm water, get the weariness out of one's bones, relax muscles and mind.

So then, you hustlers, put on your shower cap, cream your face. Use a light cream for this purpose. Don't remove it. The emollient, combined with the warm, moist air of the bath room will refresh your skin, give it smoothness and good texture.

When bathing, use a heavy brush; it is the only means of removing dead skin scales that are ever present. It makes the flesh tingle, showing that it is enlivening the blood streams.

A pleasant finish is the alternating hot and cold shower, a brisk rubdown with a bath tonic.

So far, so good. Remove the cream, massage with a heavier cream. Tap and hammer with the finger tips. Let the cosmetic stay on overnight.

Brush your hair, have a five-minute scalp friction. Apply a hand lotion, touch the finger nails with cuticle cream. Say prayers; go to bed. Breathe deeply for five or ten minutes. Good night. Sweet dreams.

HEAD OF BRITISH ATS LAUDS MILITARY WORK FOR WOMEN

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Army training is the finest education in the world for women, in the opinion of Mrs. Jean Knox, 34, head of England's vast army of women, known as the Auxiliary Territorial Service.

With Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, head of the WAACS listening attentively, Mrs. Knox, at a press conference at the British embassy, told reporters that a woman invariably is "a better and finer person" as a result of military service.

"First of all, the army teaches them self-discipline," said this extremely pretty Englishwoman, who is the only feminine holding the rank of major general in the British army. Mrs. Knox readily admitted that she knew little of such discipline herself when she joined the A. T. S. at its inception in 1938.

A slim woman of medium height, Gen. Knox made an engaging picture in her trim khaki uniform, with the gold-embroidered, scarlet tabs of her rank high-lighting her military blouse.

A discreet bit of rouge blended with her flawless English complexion. There was a faint trace of pale pink rouge on the general's mouth. Not a dark brown lock was out of place in her fashionable, up-swept hair-do, cut short in back but brushed into a high pompadour in front.

The general herself was her own best answer to a reporter's question:

"Do women lose anything as women, do they sacrifice their femininity when they join the army?"

"No," said Gen. Knox, conviction warming her clipped British accents. "No, women in the army have gained all along the line."

With Director Hobby of the WAACS, Gen. Knox will leave Washington today for Fort Des Moines where the leader of the British women's army will inspect the training center for America's feminine army.

Gen. Knox has spent the weekend in Washington, first as a guest at the White House and now as a guest in the British embassy. She came to Washington following an inspection tour in Canada.

WOMAN MILK TRUCK DRIVER INSPIRES MEN TO RISE EARLY

(By United Press)

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Memphis housewives who used to enjoy writing chummy little notes to the milkman when they needed an extra bottle of cream, now find their husbands beating them to it.

In fact, some men, who have been up early enough — or have come home late enough — to see who's driving the little white truck, suddenly have developed a more than passing interest in the milkmen. For she's really a milkmaid, and pretty too!

Her name is Mrs. Bessie Hall. And clad in white, one-piece overalls, with a ribbon holding back her brunet curls, she's quite a revelation to the early riser as he gropes his way to the door for his morning paper and coffee cream.

But with the possible exception of lipstick, compact and nail polish, Bessie the milkmaid's equipment is standard. She drives a little white runabout in a standing position, and can hustle the bottles as well as any man. She has a regular route serving restaurants, apartment buildings and residences. She swings in and out of traffic with no trouble and can hold her own with the toughest truck drivers.

But Bessie is a lady, and she's doing her job just as thousands of other women are doing—replacing men for greater efficiency in the war effort.

"It was funny at first," she said. "Everytime I'd get out in traffic someone would holler, "Look at the lady driving the milk truck.' They're getting used to me now, thank heavens."

Asked if she ever had any traffic difficulties, she replied: "Of course not. That's a lot of bunk about women drivers. I've been driving trucks, tractors and autos since I was 17 and never had an accident. But I've got my fingers crossed."

"It was a great stunt when I put Mrs. Hall on a route," said her employer, Dairyman J. C. Harbin. "That route has increased considerably and we're getting new customers all the time."

Bessie smiled when she heard that, because she had been driving the truck several weeks before her employer knew anything about it. "My husband was having trouble with his eyes so I started driving for him," she explained.

Mrs. Hall, who is the only lady truck jockey in Memphis, smiled when asked if she could drive a horse.

"I drove a horse before I knew what a sparkplug was for, and I still can," she said. "If we have to go back to horses because of gasoline rationing, so much the better, I love them."

Bessie couldn't talk any longer. "Got to go," she said. "Wednesday's our big day as we don't deliver Thursdays to save tires."

Navy Threat Ends Strike at Cleveland

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Speaking For Myself.

I don't happen to be a rabid baseball fan—I mean I occasionally think there are 11 men on the team and that three strikes are good—but I do admit there was something Shakespearean in the downfall of the Yankees. The demise had all the requisites of high tragedy; a protagonist exalted to great power, then abruptly humbled, a pushing newcomer suddenly hurtling to the top. In Toots Shor's, in Lindy's, in Reuben's and in Gallagher's, stricken men and women sat around discussing the Series as once the Romans talked of the withdrawal of the Legions from Britain, and as the Spanish grandees recounted what happened to the Armada off England.

Kilgallen

Goodness, it was funny.

Now that Mayor LaGuardia has declared a crusade on gambling, I suppose we can look for a cycle of Broadway comedies and musicals dealing with roulette, horseracing, baccarat and chemin de fer, inasmuch as the burlesque ban opened the floodgates for the current strip-tease cycle.

I think Broadwayites could aid the salvage drive immeasurably if they would consign to the scrap heap: the irons all the fellows in Sardi's are forever having in the fire, the stoves they use when they're cookin' with gas, the brass of the better-known phonies, and the lead in the shoes of the fellow standing in front of you at "Tales of Manhattan" . . . Sometimes I think Dinah Shore, while completely different, is the nearest thing to Helen Morgan that our generation has produced. Helen knew — and Dinah knows—the trick of singing only to you.

You can always spot out-of-towners in New York: they're the ones who order dinner in a Broadway night club . . . I must say voting fascinates me: there is a fine thrill in going into a small bootha nd pulling a lever you fondly hope will improve the destiny of your country. That's why it always makes me a little sad to note that such an exciting moment in a citizen's life is made much less glamorous than going to a double feature. Voting is done in places that are usually drab, often squalid; I'm for making them bright, gay, interesting and if possible, pretty. Imagine—"17th District Polling Place, decor by Dorothy Draper." And why not? There's nothing in the constitution that says history has to be made in a little green booth that looks like a tired upper berth.

People are always saying and writing that October air in New York is like wine. "Heady wine," they say sometimes, making it sound all too intoxicating. I sniff hopefully each October, but, although I must stay it is my favorite month and the atmosphere is heavenly, I never smell wine. Maybe cider or autumn leaves or wood smoke, but not wine, certainly not Cordon Rouge '28, if I am any judge.

* * *

When are the traffic cops on duty after dark going to be equipped with reflectors or luminous buttons, or something to distinguish them from the gloom of night? I get jitters watching them stand out on their posts like uncertain shadows in the dimout, while the taxis and the S-card cars go whizzing by . . . Arturo Toscanini, who is one of my favorite men in the whole world, has a reputation for being aggressively aloof but I am told on good authority of an incident which indicates he sometimes departs from this inaccessibility. A few afternoons ago, according to the tale, the maestro was sauntering alone down 57th Street when he was spied by a pair of music lovers who were, quite naturally, also Toscanini worshippers. They followed him for some distance, until they gathered up enough courage to catch up with him. Timidly, they asked for his signature, and to their astonishment, the maestro not only obliged, but engaged the pair in earnest conversation for 15 minutes

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HEADING EAST, U.S.A.—Train types, train tales:

They're a couple of kids with the fuzz barely off their chins. The world's their private oyster, and there's a Scorchy Smith gleam in their eyes. Buck privates, heading for Georgia to be parachute troops.

Coons

"Naw," said one of them named Red. "Naw, I never jumped in my life before. But I got sick o' what I was doin' back there — guardin' interned Japs. When folks ask me after the war what I did in it, I wanna say I was right in the middle of the fightin'—not playin' nursemaid to a lot of Nips. . . .

THERE'S a private over yonder —we'll call him Joe—who is full of travel. Joe says he joined up to be a soldier but so far most of his life has been spent on rails. From the coast he's been to New York, to Florida, to Southern California, to the middle west, back to the coast, and now he's bound for Louisiana. He's ebullient and garrulous and good-natured. "I'm used to it," he grins. "But what I'd really like is a chance to settle down——for more than two weeks at a time —— in one of these homey Army camps." There's a reason for his travels: he knows machine guns, and most of the raw recruits never saw one before they hit camp.

He loves machine guns, too, but what he'd love more is a chance in radio. "If I knew radio, after the war I could set up my own shop. A pair of pliers and a spool of wire, and I'd be in business . . ."

Prep-school boys, heading back to the grind. Sophomores, they talk grandly about the "rats" awaiting them, about "old Jones" and "old Cadwallader" and other "old" classmates who will share their second-year splendor. There's nothing quite so sophisticated as a prep-school soph, unless it's a dress extra in Hollywood.

WE'RE deep in the heart of Texas. Texas is where they grow many things, including husky soldiers and movie stars—more volunteers from there, I understand, than from any other state, and more movie stars.

The train is full of army wives . . . There's one just back from a quick trip to her husband's camp, cut short by his assignment to maneuvers. She was going back, disappointed but chin up, to her defense job . . . Good soldier! . . .

A couple of days ago on a train, they tell the tale, a bridal couple got aboard, still dripping rice, and proceeded to their reserved drawing room. The door opened, and a couple of army colonels stood up apologetically—"so sorry, but we have priorities," they said.

WILLKIE READY WITH ANSWERS TO HIS CRITICS

Will Have Something to Say To 'Flippant' Remarks on His Statements.

BULLETIN

(By Associated Press)

EDMONTON, Alberta—Wendell Willkie intimated in a prepared statement last night he would have something to say about "flippant statements made by certain public officials" concerning his second front utterance in Moscow after he arrives in the United States.

Willkie arrived at Fairbanks, Alaska, Sunday after flying across Mongolia and Siberia. He left China last Friday after touring the battlefront.

"I have collected much material and reached certain conclusions about our war effort, and about other countries and our relations with them." Willkie said in his statement.

"I shall be in the United States shortly, and I shall report to my fellow citizens further and in full, and to the president, if he wishes, on such subjects as he desires to discuss with me."

"Incidentally," Willkie's statement continued, "as to flippant statements made by certain public officials concerning the expression of my opinion in Russia on the question of a second front, I did not deem it appropriate or in good taste for me to reply to such personalities or flippancies while I was in other countries. I felt it my duty while abroad to uphold the hand of the president and all other United Nations officials, which I continued to do even after such remarks were made."

While in Moscow, Willkie made a statement urging speed in opening a second front and said that perhaps the military leaders needed prodding by the public. The statement evoked widespread comment in both Washington and London.

At his press conference in Washington Oct. 6, President Roosevelt said in reply to questions about Willkie's call for a second front that he had read only the headlines and did not consider the stories worthwhile reading.

On Oct. 9, at another press conference, the president told his listeners that everything was all right with the Willkie tour as far as he was concerned and that he was assuming that Willkie was carrying out extremely well just what he had asked him to do.

RULES OUT $3,500 LEGAL FEE IN SUIT OVER FLOWERS ESTATE

Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston today held that C. H. Workman, Mansfield attorney, is not entitled to a $3,500 attorney fee for legal services in a case involving the estate of the late Jacob Flowers of Sandusky township.

Judge Huston held that the Richland county probate court was "not authorized to order the claim paid" three years ago and the Richland Trust company as fiduciary of the estate had no right to pay the claim.

Attorney Workman was employed by brothers, sisters and descendants of the late Mr. Flowers with the understanding that he would receive 25 per cent of all funds obtained for his clients from the estate, the opinion held.

Since parties other than Attorney Workman's clients benefitted by the final ruling in the case, he was entitled to no fee, Judge Huston said.

The Flowers case has been argued in county, district, and state courts since 1934. Proceedings were started after the death of Mrs. Flowers who had been bequeathed life income from the estate which was valued at about $30,000. In his will, Mr. Flowers asked that the estate be turned over to several religious and charitable organizations after the death of the widow.

She also left a will, however, bequeathing the estate to the Good Samaritan hospital, Galion, and the Methodist Children's home, Worthington, O.

The action, which finally was taken to the Ohio supreme court, involved the rights of the various legatees to the estate. It was ruled finally that the widow was the sole heir and her will determined where the money should go.

ASKS FACTS

Sweeney Refuses Campaign Probe on 'Mere Statement.'

COLUMBUS —(UP)— Secretary of State John Sweeney said today that he will not investigate campaign contributions to Supreme Court Judge Roy H. Williams, Sandusky, seeking re-election on the Republican ticket, unless William C. Dixon, Cleveland Democratic candidate, supports his charges of irregularities "in writing or in person."

Dixon, seeking the same court post, charged irregularities in Williams' campaign last week, and demanded investigation of contributions to the Cuyahoga county Williams for supreme court committee.

Sweeney wrote Dixon that reports of the committee to the secretary of state were "in proper form and properly subscribed," and that "the law does not contemplate this office going behind every item in a statement of expenditures and receipts which has been properly filed and subscribed to."

He told Dixon he must have "facts to warrant any action rather than a mere statement from an opposing candidate that he has information."

Up and Down THE STREET

Mansfield Girl Scouts aren't letting the fact that they may no longer be members of the organization by the time sufficient funds are obtained to purchase a summer camp deter them from going ahead with the annual money raising project, the spring cookie sale. When it came time to vote on whether or not the Scouts would continue the sale this year the girls unanimously expressed the thought that even though wartime might delay owning a camp for a few years the sale should be sponsored because eventually their "younger sisters and other girls will derive benefits from the camp."

Enough motorists to make a city the size of Mansfield were killed on Ohio's highways and streets during the 20-year period from 1920 to 1940. That's the tragic picture revealed in a survey made by the Columbus Dispatch from census bureau figures obtained in Washington. The traffic toll in Ohio for the period was 38,313. Mansfield's population in 1940 was 37,154. The nation's toll for the two decades covered in the survey was 118,561, more than twice the United States losses of 50,510 men killed in the first World war.

Fred B. Hout, Richland county's war bond chairman for September, has been named the county "man of the month" by the Richland war bond committee. In recognition of this work as head of the bond campaign last month, the Standard Oil company of Ohio will give him a special "Minute man" citation. Hout's program to boost bond sales for the month included intensive drives in all the city's industries and the visit of movie stars Ilona Massey, Fred Astaire, and Hugh Herbert.

Major Robert J. Nichols writes from Camp Shelby to Plainclothesman Howard Schuck that he has a highly prized copy of the May issue of the Mansfield Grotto magazine. Mailed last spring to the Mississippi Army post where the 37th Division went into training late in 1940, the magazine was forwarded to five posts in the United States without finding Major Nichols. It then made the rounds of three camps in England. Next it was forwarded to Australia but failed to contact the Mansfield officer in two camps "down under." Finally the brochure was returned to Camp Shelby and into the hands of the Major. "I'll prize this as long as I live," Nichols told Schuck in a letter received today.

GIRL, 5, HURT

Driver Fined After Auto Strikes Parked Car.

Because sleeping at the wheel of his auto caused serious injury to a five-year-old girl, Robert L. Reams, Lexington youth, today was fined $50 and costs and forfeited his driving rights for 60 days.

Reams told Acting Municipal Judge Herbert H. Schettler his car struck the parked auto of Paul L. Newell, Cleveland, on Route 42-S, resulting in injury to Nancy Carol Newell who was treated at General hospital, for a cerebral concussion.

Reams, a night worker at the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, was en route home near noon, he told state highway patrolmen who filed the charge of unsafe operation. Newell had pulled to the side of the highway to make a purchase at a roadside stand and had just re-entered his car when the collision occurred.

200 VOTE TO RESUME JOBS AFTER 8 DAYS

Will Await WLB Settlement, Warned They'll Lose Draft Deferments.

(By United Press)

CLEVELAND — Two hundred strikers at the Steel Improvement and Drop Forge company went back to work today, rather than accept the navy's alternative of losing draft deferments and being barred from war plants for the duration.

The strikers, members of the Blacksmiths and Drop Forge Workers union (AFL), were on strike eight days and have refused to return despite repeated war labor board requests that they go back to work. They walked out in protest to the placing of production checkers on their machines.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ralph A. Bard telegraphed E. W. Patterson, international organizer of the union, last night that if the strikers did not return "to work immediately, the (navy) department intends to recommend that they be deprived of any existing draft deferments and of any further opportunity for employment in the production of war materials."

A few hours later, the strikers voted to go back to work, while the WLB settles their complaint.

FLEEING TRIO WOUNDS OFFICER

One Suspect in Hold-up Series Arrested as He Tumbles From Escape Car.

(By Associated Press)

STEUBENVILLE—A Steubenville policeman was wounded early today in a gunfight with a trio of robbers believed fleeing from a series of Pennsylvania hold-ups.

Police radio operator Robert Cowles identified the wounded officer as William Eddy, 48. Cowles said Eddy was shot through the side as he and a fellow cruiserman, Hyrom Bishop, "emptied their guns" after the trio opened fire.

One of the three men tumbled out of the automobile as it roared away and was apprehended by Bishop. He was jailed without charges being filed.

Cowles said the gun fight occurred as Eddy and Bishop patrolled roads leading into Ohio after Pennsylvania police reported a trio believed to have perpetrated three hold-ups in western Pennsylvania last night was headed for the border.

He gave this account of the shooting:

The two officers spotted what they thought was the robber car as it approached a filling station. Their orders to the three men to get out of the auto were answered with gunfire. Eddy was shot as he and Bishop returned the fire. The bandits sped away toward East Liverpool, one of them either falling or jumping from the car as it raced away.

The shooting occurred at 2:20 a. m., two hours after Pennsylvania police reported two persons were wounded by a trio of gunmen who held up a beer garden on route 22 near Bavington, Pa.

Missing since Oct. 6, the girls were located by police in Abilene, Texas. Mrs. Marjorie Comer, county juvenile officer, said their parents telegraphed money to the Texas city to pay their fares home.

The father of one of the girls said she had a boy friend in the army in Texas and he believed his daughter and her companion planned to visit him.

Another Senior high school pupil, absent from classes for several days, had been found today living in a rented room and working in the city, Attendance Officer John H. Eisaman said. She was ordered to return to school today.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

I don't know why I should bother to answer a recent attempt by Rusty Marshall to scorch the old Podger under Mel Harmon's column in the Sandusky Register-Star-News. It all smacks of "little kid stuff" and I know that Rusty, former Mansfielder, is old enough, in years at least, to know better.

Rusty informs the Sandusky public that I took issue with a quip in the Harmon column to the effect that Dick Butterfield's name was not Butterfingers. What I did was report the quip and tell Butterfield he could get mad about it if he wanted to. If this is taking issue, then I took issue. But I don't get it.

He also hops on me because I reported a complete lack of co-operation given my operative, Whizzer White, by Mel Harmon in the Sandusky press box.

I have no apology to make for that. Visiting newspapermen expect, and are accustomed to rereceiving, common courtesy from their fellow workers in press boxes over the land. If and when the Sandusky scribes come to Mansfield they will receive that courtesy, regardless of how they act at home.

(Pardon me if I seem to yawn a bit at this point. This all comes under the Ho Hum department.)

* * *

Marshall explains the lack of football programs at Sandusky games by saying that the public address system gives all the necessary information on the game, and suggests that Sandusky fans can save their dimes to buy war stamps. Noble thought, but I have yet to see a story on the wires that Sandusky has set any records in the purchase of war stamps.

And if Rusty will come to Mansfield he will have the use, free in the press box, of one of the best high school football programs printed in the state of Ohio. And he can still save his dime.

But the crowning barb of the Marshall scorch comes when he attempts to take me to task for not attending the Mansfield-Sandusky game.

Rusty is making newspaper history. This is the first time I've heard of the employee of one paper trying to give an assignment to the sports editor of another.

I had a capable man covering the Sandusky game, and I still doubt if it's any of Marshall's business if I covered another game here at home that night. Good game too, the Madison-Orrville battle.

Rusty says that in Erie county, grapes are made into wine and don't turn sour. Perhaps he should know. He speaks with the voice of authority.

* * *

And then Marshall discloses that all those quips in Mel Harmon's column were written not by Mel Harmon but by one, Rusty Marshall, and then proudly boasts:

"We still have TWO in the newsroom who can and do attempt to write sports."

But he doesn't explain why Marshall's sports appear under the by-line of Mel Harmon.

On this paper, Mr. Marshall, owners of by-lines are responsible for what appears under them. We have no ghost writers.

Strong men join the more tender hearted feminine fans in weeping unrestrainedly at the collapse of the great Yankee first baseman, and great blobs of tears fall unheeded on many a tanned and leathery cheek.

But if you're any part of a baseball fan, you should see this picture.

LOBERT KEEPS JOB WITH FUTILE PHILS

PHILADELPHIA — (INS) — Despite the fact that the Phils landed in the National league cellar against last season, Hans Lobert will continue as manager next year, it appeared today.

Phils' President Gerry Nugent declined to issue an outright statement of re-appointment, but commented: "I see no reason to change managers." Lobert's present contract expires Jan. 1.

Steubers Threaten Massillon Record

Each Club Has Won Four Straight, Piled Up Big Scoring Totals

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—A flock of football will be played this week-end by Ohio's 500-odd high school teams—but the No. 1 contest is scheduled Friday night at Massillon, with Steubenville opposing the terrific Tigers who have claimed the state title the last seven years.

The Steubenvilles, definitely on the upgrade after five lean campaigns, are coached by Howard Brinker, a former junior high mentor at Massillon under Paul Brown.

Each club has won four straight, Massillon scoring 137 to 12 for the foe, while Steubenville has 163 points and the opposition 24. More than 16,000 fans are expected to see the contest.

Steubenville will present as its star Johnny Stojack, who scored four touchdowns and passed for another in playing only the first half of last week's 59-6 win over Bellaire. He did not play at all in the second game, but has 60 points to show for the three he has been in.

* * *

Massillon is banking on Bob Graber, who two weeks ago romped 85 yards against Lincoln, Neb., for the longest run of the program, and repeated Friday for 97 yards as the Tigers beat Alliance 34 to 0.

That win over Alliance gave Massillon 47 straight contests without defeat. Other long strings extended were: Powhatan and Xenia O. S. & S. O. Home, 22 each; Tiltonsville 19, Cleveland Lakewood 18, Toledo Libbey and Cleveland Lincoln, 13; Stow 12, and Fredericktown 11.

Canton Lehman's 16-game streak broke under a 27-7 defeat at the hands of Canton Lincoln, while Wadsworth wrecked Barberton's 11-game stretch with a 7-6 upset.

Other teams with four consecutive wins this year include Newark and Marietta, who meet this week; East Liverpool Amsterdam, Miamisburg, Dayton Oakwood, Versailles, Medina, Hudson, Greentown, Columbus North, Bexley, Defiance and Lorain. Medina, Cleveland Lakewood and Lorain have unsullied goal lines, while Dayton Oakwood tops the high-scorers with 182 while allowing four foes only six.

Bob Lucas, Paulding's junior fullback, is the No. 1 individual scorer with 102 points for four games, although he was shut out as the Panthers dropped the opener to Defiance 26 to 0. He scored 32 points in 30 minutes last week as Delphos Jefferson fell 60 to 0.

Jack Bickel of Newark counted four times in the 53-0 win over Cambridge to reach a 77 total; Harvey Dillon of Amsterdam also got four in the 31-0 triumph over Jefferson Union, hitting third place with 73, and Stojack of Steubenville rounded out the four-touchdown group.

Other stellar point-getters, with their totals, are: Dave Barbosa of Greentown, 71 in four games; Ollie Cline, Fredericktown, 66 in three; Regis Leonard, Tiltonsville, 62 in four; Bill Cantrell of Gallipolis and Johnny Sauer of Dayton Oakwood, 58 in four, and Jim Clark, Columbus North, 42 in four.

In addition to the 97-yarder by Massillon's Graber, long runs resulting in touchdowns included: Bickel of Newark, 60, 58 and 80; Jim Johnson of Medina, 87 and 79; Dick Roush, Steubenville, 80, and Ernie Parks, Canton McKinley, 73 yards. A 100-yard dash with an intercepted pass by Van Wert's Jack Weigle was nullified by a clipping penalty, and four other Van Wert touchdowns also were cancelled for infractions as Bluffton was downed by 33 to 0.

Sees Chance for Army-Navy Game

NEW YORK — (UP) — Lt. Col. Lawrence "Biff" Jones, graduate manager and former head coach at West Point, said yesterday that the Army-Navy football game probably would be held this year.

Speaking at the weekly luncheon of the football writers, Jones stressed the current transportation difficulties and said that the annual classic might be shifted from Municipal Stadium, Philadelphia, to some other site, possibly the Polo grounds in New York. The final word must come from the War and Navy departments, however.

"Spectators alone used 42 special trains last year," Jones said. "In addition seven more were needed for cadets and midshipmen. The Cadets will not attend this year but we hope to keep the series going, if at all possible."

FULLBACKS LOST

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—(INS)—Another worry was piled today on the head of Ed McKeever, who is filling in for Frank Leahy, head coach of Notre Dame's Irish now undergoing an examination for back pains at Rochester, Minn. With Jim Mello and Jerry Cowhig on the injured list, McKeever feared that Corwin Clatt may be the only available fullback for Saturday's game against the Iowa Seahawks.

Hassinger Takes Ashland Shoot

Mansfield riflemen took the main events in a sizzling rifle tournament at Ashland Sunday where the Annual Small Bore N. C. O. Individual championship was held.

C. A. Hassinger took the Martin Hardware trophy, with a score of 398 out of 400. Three other competitors also had 398 but were out-ranked by Hassinger, who had the greater number of centers.

L. A. Arntz was winner of the Metallic Sight Dewar, with 395 of 400. Arntz also won this match last year.

The aggregate and N. C. O. championship went to Clarence Rist, a newcomer with a score of 791. Rist was tied by Arntz and also Pflederer of Galion. But Rist out-ranked them with 47 centers. The Kechheiser trophy was awarded to Rist for one year.

Hassinger and Arntz won the two-man event with 398, firing 20 shots each at 100 yards.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(Wide World)—New York grid fans are working up a head of steam over the possibility of getting the Army-Navy game since Biff Jones told the football writers that it isn't at all certain to be played in Philadelphia as scheduled. . . . But Biff also pointed out that it's Navy's game and you know the Navy never has cared too much about playing here. . . . In two of the past three seasons Cleveland's minor hockey league club has done as well at the gate as the New York Rangers and hasn't had to pay big league salaries.

All Deny it Except Joe

Louis Stands Pat on Retirement Plans.

NEW YORK —(UP)— About the only member of Joe Louis' official fistic family who wasn't denying Joe's statement of his retirement today was—Joe, himself.

That, of course, didn't include Mrs. Joe, whose only statement when informed Joe had said his "fightin' days are over" was that "it's just as well."

In New York Promoter Mike Jacobs, who has put on every one of the Brown Bomber's fights since 1935, and in Detroit John Roxborough, one of the two managers who piloted him into the world's heavyweight championship, both insisted that Joe, in telephone conversations with them, had said he was "misinterpreted."

Yet, not a word came from Sergeant Joe at Fort Riley, Kansas, to refute the statement he gave the Associated Press Sunday. He was all set to leave for a 15 day furlough in Los Angeles today to take care of some private business but there was no claim from him that he was "misinterpreted."

MUSCATO WINS

CHICAGO — (UP) — Jimmy Varketta, 138-pound Cleveland battler, outpointed Jerry Pittro, 141, Chicago, in a six-round preliminary bout on last night's Sergeant Joe Muscato-Vince Calzaretto boxing card. Muscato, 192½, won eight straight rounds for an easy decision over Calzaretto, who weighed 189½.

Buckeyes Play Toughest Sked

At Least That's Paul Brown's Opinion.

COLUMBUS—(UP)—Coach Paul Brown figures that Ohio State has the toughest football schedule of any team in the country for the rest of the season.

Still undefeated after three games, Ohio State meets Purdue here next Saturday, then Northwestern, Wisconsin, Pittsburgh, Illinois (conqueror of Minnesota), Michigan and Bernie Bierman's Iowa Cadets.

Members of the Ohio State team last night saw movies of their 28-12 victory over Southern California.

"These pictures show that some of our men had a great day," Brown said. "Charley Csuri was probably one of the best linemen on the field while on the other side of the line, Don McCafferty outshone Bill Willis at tackle. If McCafferty continues his good work he'll be pushing in there on the first team."

Brown also liked the work of Bob Shaw, who caught two passes for touchdowns.

"He played a fine game," the coach said, "not only because he was hauling down passes but also because his blocking and tackling were nearly perfect."

College Scribe Absolves Gridders

KENT — (AP) — Tom Gavagan, sports editor of Kent State University's newspaper who last week raised the question of a possible link between the varsity football team and gambling pools, said the players are "perfectly innocent."

His controversial editorial, Gavagan said yesterday, was based on second-hand information and never was intended to question the loyalty of the players.

* * *

Gavagan wrote last week that the Kent team staged a "desperate bid" in the final quarter of its game with Findlay to make another score although leading at the time 6-0. "What are the Golden Flashes fighting for—the glory of the university or the financial remuneration of a football pool?" the editorial asked.

Smith Awarded Captain's Cup

All-American Honor Goes To Sailor Star.

GREAT LAKES, Ill. — (INS) — Bruce Smith, all-American halfback on the University of Minnesota's 1941 National championship football team, held today the "Captain's Cup" awarded annually to the player elected by the All-America football team.

The trophy, emblematic of his selection as "captain" of the 1941 All-America team, was presented to Smith last night by Christy Walsh, founder and member of the All-America board of football.

Lieut. Tony Hinkle, former director of athletics at Butler university and now football coach at Great Lakes, introduced Walsh. The presentation was made during the "happy hour" at Great Lakes.

Ohio Picked Nation's Best

Sports Writers Vote For Brown's Buckeyes.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Mighty Minnesota has tumbled at last, but the Big Ten conference still produces the best college football teams in the land, in the opinion of 91 sports writers who voted in the first Associated Press poll of the season and picked Ohio State as the country's No. 1 team.

Coach Paul Brown's Buckeyes, winners of their first three starts by decisive margins, received 25 first-place votes and a total of 636 points, based on the usual pattern of ten points for each first-place vote, nine for each second, and so on.

While Minnesota, the No. 1 team in the final rankings of 1941, slumped to 14th place this time, the Big Ten produced three other representatives among the first ten, in addition to Ohio State.

The Southeastern conference landed a trio of teams among the first ten, including Georgia which was voted the No. 2 spot, while the east as represented by two clubs and the far west by one.

Here are the first ten, with the first-place votes in parentheses and points figured on a 10-9-8-7 etc., basis:

|---|---|
| 1. Ohio State (25) | 636 |
| 2. Georgia (12) | 494 |
| 3. Michigan (12) | 418 |
| 4. Alabama (10) | 356 |
| 5. Illinois (8) | 326 |
| 6. Georgia Tech (5) | 300 |
| 7. Wisconsin (9) | 296 |
| 8. Pennsylvania (5) | 289 |
| 9. Colgate (2) | 170 |
| 10. Washington State (3) | 168 |

In addition to its 25 first-place votes, the Ohio State team which has turned back Fort Knox, Indiana and Southern California drew 20 second-place tallies.

MORE FEDERAL OFFICES TO BE DE-CENTRALIZED

Building Commissioner Says Move Away From Capital Will Be Continued.

(By Wide World)

WASHINGTON -- Further decentralization of federal government—moving offices away from Washington—is in the offing.

That's what W. E. Reynolds commissioner of public buildings, told a congressional sub-committee in hearings on the second supplemental national defense appropriation bill for 1943.

"We are now working on the basis that there will be no further construction in the District of Columbia," he said.

"We have told all of the departments and agencies that they face one of three alternatives. One was to use less square feet per person—we are working now on the basis of 80 feet—or to go to second and third shifts, or to move out of Washington.

"We have told them that Washington itself had reached the saturation point of office space housing, sewer and water and hospital facilities, and schools . . .

"I think there will be further decentralization. I do not know how you can avoid it."

He gave congress some figures on decentralization to date:

In addition to federally-owned space outside the District of Columbia, the government is leasing 108,600,000 square feet of space, besides the rented post office quarters which total 13,462,000 square feet.

"The annual rentals accruing under lease arrangements, outside of the post offices, amount to $50,149,000; and, for the post offices, $10,366,000," he testified.

The appropriation bill, as passed by the house, carries $47,760 for a continuing study of the space problem—"in order to save rent for the government," Reynolds explained.

"There is an opportunity, I think, of saving a great deal of money."

Of decentralization operations so far, he said:

"Most people that have been asked to move out of Washington have objected very much Since they have moved, they are generally delighted that they did. They find living conditions better, costs are less, and I doubt if many of them will want to come back."

Right now, he said, "rentals are occurring so rapidly and space is so insistently demanded that you do not have much time to do anything with it."

In the District of Columbia Reynolds said, space in federal buildings on Dec. 31, 1940, totaled 16,400,000 square feet. Last June 30 the total had increased to 22,460,000. Space leased in private buildings here jumped from 4,870,000 square feet in December, 1940, to 6,350,000 in June of this year.

Some related data came from the U. S. civil service commission the other day:

Civilian employment in the executive branch of government alone reached 275,362 persons in the Washington metropolitan area in August—a net increase of 1,361 over July, although approximately 1,200 employes were decentralized to other cities.

The pay roll for the Washington area, was $48,124,986 in August.

DARTMOUTH FELLOWS PICK SOME DIFFICULT COURSES

(By International News Service)

HANOVER, N. H. — President Ernest Martin Hopkins of Dartmouth college recently named eight juniors to be Senior Fellows for the coming year, because the college wanted to find out just what top-ranking undergraduates would do if turned loose to study what and when they pleased.

Among the serious and difficult projects announced by the Fellows are three dealing with the post-war world. George B. Munroe of Joliet, Ill., wants to study the question of economic reform after the war; John M. Keefe of Bronxville, N. Y., plans to learn about reconstruction and ways of checking the war; and Walter R. Daggatt of Portland, Ore., is going to explore post-war economy, particularizing his study to the machine tool industry in New England.

Other fields selected are semantics, actuarial mathematics, regional planning, industry-government relations and humanism.

The senior Fellws, granted academic freedom, receive their degrees at the end of a fourth year. They are not required to attend class or take examinations. All they have to go is to be in residence and remain in good standing as undergraduates.

An interesting fact about the Fellows is the balancing of scholarship with campus activities in every case. Two of the eight are lettermen on varsity teams.

RULE ON ROAD

Commissioners Dismiss Appeal For Vacation.

A petition of Mifflin township trustees to vacate a two-tenths mile section of the Hale road near Windsor was dismissed yesterday by county commissioners when the trustees failed to appear at a public hearing at the courthouse.

Opposing the proposed abandonment of the short strip of road, a property owner in the Windsor area submitted a petition bearing the signatures of several residents of the community.

Trustees had contended that the Hale road, which links U. S. Route 42 with a county road, is no longer needed because the two routes it connects meet a short distance from the connecting road.

STEEL MILLS BOOST OUTPUT TO NEW MARK

Stock Mart Resumes Upward Movement With Leaders Adding Fractions.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market today resumed its advance with most leaders adding fractions in early dealings.

Gainers included U. S. Steel, Western Union, General Motors, Chrysler, Chesapeake & Ohio, Anaconda, and Texas Co.

A constructive market indicator was seen in the estimate of the American Iron & Steel institute that the country's steel mill operations this week would be at the rate of 100.2 per cent of capacity, highest since the start of the war and a jump of 1.6 points over the previous week.

Notice was taken of the Federal Reserve summary disclosing that, although armament production was proceeding at expanding figures, governmental expenditures of $5,500,000,000 in September were only seven-eighths as large as the amount spent by consumers for civilian goods and services during the month.

The navy, in releasing eyewitness accounts of survivors, said that the tanker was torpedoed at 7:10 a. m. (PWT) Sunday, Oct. 4. Only one member of the crew of 48 was lost.

The tanker was drifting, her engines shut off for minor repairs, when the submarine opened fire with two—and possibly three—torpedoes. The first blast tumbled officers and men to the floor of the bridge and sent flames from oil high above the masts.

PRODUCTION OF SUPPLIES FIRST VICTORY NEED

Army Officer Tells Foremen Peak Output Only Start of Success in War.

When the nation's war plants reach their peak of production, that will be only the beginning of the drive for victory in this war, First Lieut. J. B. Deutschle of the U. S. Army told members of the Mansfield-Shelby Foremen's club last night.

Lieut. Deutschle, stationed at Fort Hayes, Columbus, spoke before 175 members of the club at a dinner meeting at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. The session was the first of the fall season for the organization.

"We must remember that we are supplying Great Britain, Russia, and China as well as our own forces," Lieut. Deutschle said. "We can get an idea of the huge amount of supplies and equipment needed when we realize that one armored combat division shoots 900 tons of ammunition a day."

Warning against over-confidence, he said this war demands all the nation can muster to make up for the head start Germany and Japan had when we entered the war.

"Don't think this will be over the day after tomorrow," he said. "The Germans had an army of 9,000,000 men when they attacked Russia and over 100 million people in conquered areas working for them. The Japs may live on a little island, but they have a population larger than Germany's and since the Pearl Harbor attack they have taken over vast areas and resources in Asia and the Pacific. We are trying to do in a few months what the enemy did in several years."

The task before American labor now is one of survival, he said, for the loss of the war would mean an end to organized labor.

"English labor long ago gave up the idea of limiting working hours," he continued. "We hope we can produce enough without doing that. Dictators strike at labor first, however, and there would be no arguments about wages and hours if we lose."

As last night's program opened, three officers of Mansfield Co. F of the Ohio State Guard under command of Capt. Glenn L. Bierly posted the colors in the hotel ballroom. Participating were Sgts. Winfield Bonnell and Donald Frampton and Cpl. Robert Young. James Bierly of the American Legion cadets was the bugler.

A movie of Ohio's boys in the 37th Division in training at Camp Shelby, Miss., was shown. Music was provided through the courtesy of Westinghouse members of the club.

Promises Trials of Nazis For Atrocities

WASHINGTON — (UP) — The United Nations plan no mass reprisals against Axis populations after the war but individual leaders guilty of atrocities will be "tried in accordance with the judicial processes of criminal law," President Roosevelt promised last night.

Mr. Roosevelt said in his radio speech that Axis nations are increasing the "fury of their atrocities."

"We have made it entirely clear that the United Nations seek no mass reprisals against the populations of Germany or Italy or Japan," he said. "But the ringleaders and their brutal henchmen must be named and apprehended, and tried in accordance with the judicial processes of criminal law."

He said each of their "criminal deeds" is being investigated "and the evidence is being relentlessly piled up."

Campaign activities of both Richland county candidates for state representatives today were confined strictly to General hospital.

Last week, Ralph C. Lutz, Democratic candidate, was taken to the hospital for an emergency appendicitis operation.

Last night, John L. Catlett, Republican candidate entered the hospital with a serious case of ivy poisoning. Handshakes were out for him, the poisoning covering his right hand, his left hand, his face and threatening to reach other parts of his body. It also presents a handicap to his sight.

However, both Lutz and Catlett were reported "as well as can be expected" at the hospital today.

NEW SEA CLASH FOR CONTROL OF PACIFIC LOOMS

Jap Armada Reported at Sea; Admiral Says U. S. Will Hold Despite Losses.

Guadalcanal area, Aug. 8-9. Most of the American crewmen were saved, the navy said.

McCain's confident appraisal of the situation followed by one day a navy announcement adding the three cruisers to the reported American naval losses in the savage but successful battle two months ago to break Japanese control of the Solomons.

The admiral made two trips to Guadalcanal and he said there were evidences that the Japanese actually were declining in aerial strength in the Solomons area.

In this evidence, he said, were facts as to the types of planes they were using and the speed with which they were making replacements.

McCain declared that some of the biplane seaplanes the enemy used "never would have been used there unless they were entirely regardless of human life or were running short of equipment."

He said that during a raid on Sept. 12 several Japanese bombers and fighters were shot down and that examination of parts of these planes showed they were "absolutely new" and had just come from the assembly lines.

McCain replaced Vice Admiral John H. Towers as chief of the bureau of aeronautics. Towers went to the Pacific as commander of the fleet air force.

Asked about the effectiveness of American attacks on Japanese bases in the northwestern Solomons, McCain reported that the enemy's seaplane base at Rekata bay on Santa Isabel island had, he thought, been made untenable and he said he knew definitely that the enemy base at Gizo had been rendered untenable.

In response to questions about whether the Japanese had been able to land heavy reinforcements on Guadalcanal, particularly artillery units, McCain said that they had "put nothing heavy in there up to the time I left."

While protecting the night landing of American reinforcements in the Tulagi-Guadalcanal area, Aug. 8-9, the navy disclosed late yesterday, the Quincy, Vincennes and Astoria were sent to the bottom by enemy gunfire and torpedoes.

The spectacular battle, fought in the glare of star shells and searchlights, also brought destruction of the Australian cruiser Canberra.

Capt. Samuel N. Moore of Alexandria, Va., commander of the Quincy, was among those lost. The skippers of the Vincennes and the Astoria, Captains F. L. Riefkohl of Maurabo, Puerto Rico, and William G. Greenman of Watertown, N. Y., were saved.

The navy said it was impossible to determine what losses were suffered by the Japanese force of cruisers and destroyers.

The conflict opened as the Allied cruisers stood guard over the landing of supplies and additional troops on the bases seized by U. S. Marines on Aug. 8 and 9. Enemy planes dropped flares over the landing operations and the Japanese ships, skirting the south coast of Savo island between Tulagi and Guadalcanal, opened up with guns and torpedoes.

The enemy headed for the supply ships. The Canberra, covering the landing operations at this point, was damaged, set afire and later abandoned. She sank the next morning. After this brief engagement, the enemy steamed for the pasage northeast of Savo. There, Japanese searchlights and starshells disclosed a second screening force of destroyers and cruisers.

"The enemy fire was heavy and accurate," the navy said, "and the U. S. cruisers Quincy and Vincennes were hit repeatedly and sank during the night."

Badly damaged in the same engagement, the Astoria burned throughout the night and finally sank. A third United States force, stationed within the landing area apparently escaped the attack, and while the cost was heavy, the necessary reinforcements and supplies reached their goal.

The importance of the Solomons operations was emphasized by the navy in a communique disclosing that the United Nations have established bases in the New Hebrides, and Fiji islands, as well as in New Caledonia.

The Japanese expansion in the Solomons the navy said would have threatened these bases along with the United States supply lines to Australia and New Zealand.

Of the three lost cruisers the Astoria had a normal complement of 49 officers and 850 enlisted men, and the Quincy and the Vincennes, 45 officers and 907 men each.

Reveal Nimitz Visit To Guadalcanal

PEARL HARBOR —(AP)— U S fleet headquarters disclosed today that Admiral Chester W. Nimitz visited Guadalcanal island in the Solomons two weeks ago and presented 27 awards to navy, marine and army heroes.

The trip to the south Pacific island by the commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet followed conference with Vice-Admiral Robert L. Ghormley, naval commander in the south Pacific, and Lieutenant General H. H. Arnold, commanding general of U. S. air forces.

Awarded the Navy Crosses included:

Pvt. Raymond D. Parker, Cincinnati, O., marine who stopped a Japanese beach infiltration and killed a Jap who was bayonetting a corporal.

Corp. Elmer Hacker, South Fork, Ky., marine, who led his company in repulsing the enemy with severe losses.

Pvt. Harry Dunn, Springfield, O., marine, who rescued a wounded comrade on patrol beyond the marines' lines at Lunga river Aug. 27. He carried Pvt. Jack Morrison on his back for two and one-half miles.

Skirmish With Japs In Mountain 'Gap'

BULLETIN

LONDON —(INS)— The Japanese have been defeated in some strength at Ioribaiwa in New Guinea, the Reuter News agency reported today in a dispatch from "Somewhere in New Guinea."

GENERAL M'ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia —(AP)— Allied mountain troops in New Guinea were reported skirmishing today with the Japanese in the region of "The Gap" through the Owen Stanley mountains not far from the mile high Templeton's crossing

Gen. MacArthur's communique said only that "skirmishing is taking place north of Myola," but a spokesman added that Allied forward elements had made some progress forward from Templeton's crossing, which the Allied troops are approaching, the mountain trail drops 5,000 feet in 12 miles.

No details were given as to the strength of the Japanese, who had been withdrawing steadily from positions in the Owen Stanley mountains.

Air activity was on a reduced scale.

diminished violence south of the Terek river in the Mozdok area of the eastern Caucasus, where Adolf Hitler had thrown big forces, hoping to drive to the nearby Grozny oil fields from which he had been held two months.

The noon communique reported a Russian advance on one sector, the killing of 250 Germans by one Soviet unit, and the destruction of eight German planes. The government organ Izvestia said armored trains had been thrown into the battle, and, shelling enemy positions, had killed hundreds and blown up many tanks in the last several days.

Heavy fighting raged above Stalingrad, between the Don and Volga rivers, and west of the Don, on the north side of the bend, where Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's counter offensive had been underway for weeks.

RAF Stages Another Raid On Germany

LONDON—(AP)— RAF bombers attacked industrial northern Germany last night, losing two bombers, the air ministry said today. The raid apparently was of moderate scope compared to other mass raids.

A German radio broadcast said northern coastal regions were under alarm and explosions in several towns caused slight damage.

"Several of the attacking bombers were shot down," the Germans said.

Copenhagen dispatch broadcast from Berlin reported three British raiders were shot down on Danish soil after flying over Germany.

The British Broadcasting Corporation warned the French today that it was important now as never before for every Frenchman to be prepared for operations by the Allied air forces, navies and armies.

Fortresses Again Batter Nazi Tobruk

CAIRO—Flying Fortresses of the United States army battered the Axis North African supply harbor of Tobruk yesterday while British fighters held off a second day of terrific German-Italian air assault on Malta, shooting down at least 24 Axis planes and damaging about 30.

The Fortresses were said to have scored a probable hit and several near misses on a medium-sized ship in the Tobruk harbor.

The hard-fighting Malta airmen set a record for the destruction of Axis planes in one period of daylight and marked up a two-day score of 39 planes destroyed in the aerial fighting which started over the tiny citadel, known as "the most bombed place in the world."

In the past, violent and continuous air attacks on Malta have meant that the Axis was attempting to move convoys across the Mediterranean to bolster Field Marshal Rommel's Africa Corps.

As Senior High Pupils Spur Scrap Campaign

An aroused student body at Senior high school has gone about the business of collecting scrap with a determination that is attracting the city's attention and admiration. The upper picture shows the 300 members of the "M" association and Vocational club who contributed articles of scrap to the growing pile in the stadium this morning. Many of them later collected more salvage materials in five trucks. Below, four Senior high boys pile more articles on the heap. Left to right, the boys are Charles Condon, Louis Nameth, Thomas Schwartzkopf and William Boyce. Condon and Boyce represent the "M" association and Nameth and Schwartzkopf are members of the Vocational club.

Msgr. R. C. Goebel urged the pupils to bring in every usable article of scrap they can find. Teachers in the school have composed a campaign song to be sung to the tune of "Battle Hymn of the Republic." It will be sung twice daily as pupils march to classes after saluting the flag outside the buildings.

Salvage Chairman Stough today released figures for last week's collections at the schools, showing that Hedges school topped the others by a sizeable margin.

Hedges pupils collected a total of 20,292 pounds during the week, an average of more than 43 pounds per pupil. Next in total collections was Bowman school with 16,120 pounds, an average of about 17 pounds per pupil.

John Simpson junior high ranked third with 12,700 pounds for a per pupil average of slightly more than 11 pounds. Other school totals were:

Brinkerhoff, 5,000 pounds; Bushnedd, 4,500 pounds; Carpenter, 6,000 pounds; Newman, 8,000 pounds; Prospect, 4,000 pounds; Western avenue, 6,340 pounds; West Fifth, 2,410 pounds; Woodland, 2,000 pounds; Johnny Appleseed, 2,000 pounds, and Senior high school, 4,000 pounds, (estimated).

Nye, candidate for lieutenant governor, and other state candidates.

In a state-wide radio address last night, Gov. Bricker asserted that criticism of Ohio's war effort by Democratic leaders was "malicious and unpatriotic." Commenting on McSweeney's attack on his civilian defense program, the governor said.

"The half million of Ohio's fine people who have volunteered and are tirelessly giving of their time do not think it (the defense program) is a joke."

McSweeney countered with the statement that "patriotism is more than a pious expression. I stand on my record."

Regarding the $20,000,000 state surplus, Gov. Bricker said:

"There has developed only one issue in this campaign. That involves our savings of $20,000,000. Our opponent would spend it would spread it around would give it away. I am for keeping it for the rainy day ahead. I want it used for the taxpayers of Ohio. It is their money. I want it to assure the continuance of Ohio's good government without the burden of increased taxes. Health, welfare and schools are depending on it."

U. S. Charges Cleveland Unionist Gave False Statement.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—David Balint, 33 year-old CIO leader, faces possible deportation if convicted on a new charge of making false statements in his resignation as an Hungarian-born alien, government attorneys said today.

A criminal information filed yesterday by District Attorney Don C. Miller said Balint was a member of the Communist party of America for five years but failed to say so during the nation-wide alien registration.

Balint previously had pleaded innocent to another government charge he had falsely sworn, in applying for citizenship, that he never had been arrested.

Teachers were also informed of the seven special student assemblies scheduled for the first semester, at their meeting Monday afternoon. First on the program will be a lecture on social hygiene by Dr. F. H. Crombie of the state department of health appearing in the school auditorium, Thursday.

Plans are being laid for the Homecoming assembly Oct. 30 at which time the new queen will be crowned by last year's ruler, Etabel Hunter, and four attendants are to be named. This will take place at an all-student participation assembly.

CONGRESS SET TO ACT ON FDR DRAFT REQUEST

Prepares to Start Legislation Calling Youths of 18 and 19 For Armed Service.

tary action on the general manpower question urged the use of older men, handicapped people and "even grown boys and girls" wherever possible to replace men of military age and fitness.

If voluntary action fails, legislation may be necessary Mr. Roosevelt declared.

"The school authorities in all the states should work out plans to enable our high school students to take some time from their school year and to use their summer vacations to help farmers raise and harvest their crops, or to work in war industries," he said.

"This does not mean closing the schools and stopping education. It does mean giving older students a better opportunity to contribute to the war effort. Such work will do no harm to the students."

People should work closer to their homes, he said, and there should be wider employment of women, Negroes and older men. "Prejudices against these groups no longer can be afforded by a nation at war," the president warned.

And then he added:

"It may be that all of our volunteer effort—however well-intentioned and well-administered—will not suffice to solve the problem. In that case we shall have to adopt new legislation. If this is necessary I do not believe that the American people will shrink from it."

The nation has enough people, Mr. Rosevelt continued, but the problem is "to have the right numbers of the right people in the right places at the right time."

Although the president's first fireside chat since he returned from his nation-wide inspection of war plants and camps stressed domestic matters, it highlighted optimism for all the United Nations.

"We Americans and our Allies are going to win—and do not let anyone tell you different," he said.

Concerning a "second front," the president told the nation:

"As I have said before, many major decisions of strategy have been made. One of them—on which we have all agreed—relates to the necessity of diverting enemy forces from Russia and China to other theaters of war by new offensives against Germany and Japan. An announcement of how these offensives are to be launched, and when, and where, cannot be broadcast over the radio at this time."

Decisions, he emphasized will be made by military leaders, not by "typewriter strategists who expound their views in the press or on the radio."

When the collapse of the Axis begins, a few Americans will urge letting the future of civilization take care of itself, the president predicted, but added:

"It is useless to win battles if the cause for which we fought these battles is lost. It is useless to win a war unless it stays won. We, therefore, fight for the restoration and perpetuation of faith and hope throughout the world."

The Axis "war of nerves" now is turning into a boomerang, Mr. Roosevelt stated. He reiterated the United Nations' determination to call the Axis leaders to account for continuing atrocities. In conclusion, he declared that the "clear and realistic" war objective is to destroy completely the military power of the enemy so their threat "cannot be revived a generation hence."

FDR to Make More 'Secret' Trips

WASHINGTON —(UP)— President Roosevelt last night answered criticism of the secrecy of his tour of war plants with a statement that he intends to make other trips for similar purposes, and "make them in the same way."

"It is very easy to say, as some have said, that when the president travels through the country he should go with a blare of trumpets, with crowds on the sidewalks, with batteries of reporters and photographers — talking and posing with all the politicians of the land." Mr. Roosevelt said in his fireside chat.

"But having had some experience in this war and in the last war, I can tell you very simply that the kind of trip I took permitted me to concentrate on the work I had to do without expending time, meeting all the demands of publicity.

"And—I might add—it was a particular pleasure to make a tour of the country without having to give a single thought to politics."

Proposes Boards to Solve Work Problem

WASHINGTON—(AP)—As one means of tackling the manpower problem, Chairman Tolan (D., Calif.) of the house defense migration committee proposed today the establishment of special boards to determine "who shall go to war and who shall work at home."

He suggested a reorganization of the occupational deferment system, by transfer of the deferment responsibility from selective service to "technically qualified boards" under the war manpower commission.

"The serious condition in agriculture and comparable serious situations in some areas of heavy industrial war contract concentration," he said, "testify to the inability of local draft boards to cope with problems of occupational deferments in a shortage labor market."

From where I sit.....

by Joe Marsh

HAPPENED to me only yesterday. I step on the starter of my car. Engine turns over O. K. but she won't start.

So I look under the hood just as if I know what's the matter. Tap a few things with a wrench. While I'm standin' there, wondering what to do next, a young soldier stops alongside.

"Need some help?" he asks.

"Got her almost fixed," I says. "But still she won't start."

"Looks like your carburetor's flooded," he says. "Got a screw driver handy?"

That young soldier knew what he was doin' all right. Went to work just like a professional.

"She'll be O.K. now," he says, straightenin' up and smilin'.

Boy's face looked sort of familiar. And darned if that soldier wasn't young Charlie Jenkins from Elm Street. Used to be a round-shouldered kid—one of those jitter bugs you hear about. Say! You wouldn't know him after six months in the Army. Fifteen pounds heavier—straight and tan and real sure of himself. The Army's done a lot for Charlie. Made a man out of him—and I guess that goes for lots of other young fellows, too.

* * *

The other day I read how some folks worry about the soldiers havin' a glass of beer now and then. Well, after seein' Charlie, I don't think there's much cause for people to fret.

Just like Charlie says—"If you can trust us with guns and ships and tanks, I guess you can trust us with a glass of beer once in a while, if we happen to want one."

And I know the beer industry is co-operating with the Army and the law-enforcement officers to see that beer is sold in good, clean, decent places.

From where I sit, this country's never seen a finer, cleaner, better-behaved lot of men than the ones in uniform today... I'm not worryin' about 'em!

CHAPTER XIX

The Santos residence was a rambling white house with a red tiled roof set in a paradise of palms and exotic flowers. A negro house boy came out when the station wagon stopped and took Temple's bags. Jud called to him with familiarity and the boy grinned back.

The house inside was cool and spacious, the furniture tastefully modern, the colors beige and green predominating. Flowers were everywhere in tall vases and small colorful bowls Everywhere, too, there was comfort and there was luxury.

Molly Santos, wearing cool white silk, came in to meet them and Temple saw at once that she was a woman of beauty and dignity and friendliness Tall, with close-cropped white hair, she had a young smile and a young voice She was the kind of woman Temple thought with sudden shame, that she had hoped Jud's mother would be

"Why, Temple, hello, my dear! We've heard so much about you." She looked into Temple's eyes and smiled "Jud has a talent for under-statement, I'm afraid." She laughed, hers was warm, rich laughter. 'I know that you feel you are an intruder, but you are not. I shall love having you here and I want you to feel as free as if you were staying at a hotel"

Jud was smiling. 'What did I tell you Temple?"

Temple said, 'You understand again, I'm afraid" She was glad now that she had come

Molly Santos said, "Well, I'll let you two decide about that, as well as the other things you probably want to decide. In the meantime I'm sure that Temple would love a shower and some lighter clothing"

She saw Jud leave reluctantly.

Then Molly said, "I'll show you to your room, Temple If you have never been here before, it does seem very strange at first. This is the first time I've ever stayed on through the summer, but as perhaps Jud has told you my husband is in Washington and my presence there would necessitate a social life he has not time for now There are army and navy wives and also defense wives. I do fly up to see him occasionally to give him a wifely lecture on all work and no play and he flies down to see Thalia and me '

"Thalia?" Temple asked

"My daughter . . . Didn't Jud," she smiled "Obviously not. He hasn't had time to tell you everything, has he? But Thalia is in New York She flew up for some parties and to do some shopping and she was particularly sorry to miss you. You see, we've come to know quite a lot about the boys at the base, their families and their sweethearts and the jobs they had before they went into the service Jud has become like a new member of my family. But it does mean so much to them to eat away from the base and to come here and play the phonograph and dance and relax I'm not the only woman who keeps open house Almost everyone does Oh, but how thoughtless of me! I am talking much too much and you've had a long trip"

She left Temple upstairs in a room furnished with modern walnut pieces, a room as impersonal as a hotel room Temple removed the short jacket of her dress, realizing suddenly that her physical discomfort was due to change in the climate.

She walked to the window and gazed down at the paradise of flowers and palms, she looked puzzled as little beads of perspiration formed on her upper lip and a flood of new thoughts rushed through her mind . . . Jud had been having a good time. He was happy here Not lonely at all. He'd been having fun with the kind of people who brought out the best in him, rich people living in grace and comfort and plenty. He had new friends . . . He had not written her any of this and she had wrongly imagined that he was lonely and unhappy and had not made friends.

Why did it frighten her? Why wasn't she glad for him? Why did little fears begin a taunting chant? And jealousy was like a germ that had been injected in her, a most prolific and dangerous germ . . . Had Thalia Santos gone to New York in order to avoid her? Who and what was Thalia Santos? Was she in love with Jud? The germ could multiply a thousand times if she would let it.

She thought, "I'll take a shower and unpack and put on my new white suit I'll be happy until I'm sure there's reason to be unhappy Jud is my husband. I love him and he loves me. I mustn't doubt him. I won't be petty and suspicious. If only they knew I was his wife and I could wear my wedding ring"

When Temple came downstairs wearing the white suit and new white pumps, her face fresh and tinted, her hair smooth and dark and shining, she felt infinitely better and more certain of herself.

Molly Santos and Jud, the latter wearing immaculate white linen, were sitting around a small table in the long, cool living-room Although Jud's smile was the warm, intimate one she knew so well, there was something new in the same smile, a gayety, an irresponsibility

Jud said, "little sunburn and she'll look like the rest of us, won't she, Molly?"

Temple thought, "Then I'm not like you any more . . . I'm different because I live and work in Washington. Oh, but this separation has made me too sensitive I won't be like that!"

She said, "One morning in the sun and I won't be a pale face any longer I tan quickly"

Molly nodded and smiled.

The house boy brought in cocktails Jud talked more than usual. He said amusing things and made them laugh They did not speak of the war Jud and Molly talked, trying to include Temple in a conversation about things and places of which she knew nothing. They looked at her occasionally, Jud telling her by his look that they would be alone soon and how much he wanted to be alone with her, Molly telling her that she liked her and understood her strangeness But they did not leave until the cocktail shaker was empty To Temple they stayed an incredibly long time When they left to go outside to the station wagon, Molly gave Temple a key

In the station wagon Jud put his arms around her and kissed her, a long, deep kiss

"I've been thinking about that, missing it, wanting it," he said "Oh, Lord, it's wonderful to feel you close again, Temple The most inspired letters aren't as satisfying as the touch of your hand."

Somehow . . . somehow they were just so many words he was saying, so many hollow, empty words . . . She put her arms around him

"What's the matter, darling?" he asked

She was shaking Her voice trembled "Oh, nothing Nothing, Jud."

"Climate, excitement, hunger. We'll do something about the last immediately."

She felt better as they rode into town and he pointed out places of interest, though her face still burned with shame that for a horrible moment Jud's words had been empty and meaningless. Climate, excitement, hunger, of course. She was happy That was it. She was so terribly happy! She could see Jud and feel his nearness.

"Mrs. Santos is charming, Jud. I'm sorry I'm not going to meet her daughter"

"Oh, Thalia I'm sorry, too. She's a grand gal, an all around grand gal She's the neighborhood tomboy who grew up She's divorced, by the way I don't know the details She refers jokingly to her late-lamented husband. She's a good sport How is everything in Washington? Is everyone still tearing around?"

"Yes. More so. Abby sent her love"

"Oh, yes, Abby How is she?"

"Fine. You wouldn't know her. She's developed an interest in herself and she's pretty."

"I don't believe it And Paula . . . How's the old girl?"

Paula, the old girl Temple didn't quite like that She said quietly, "She's restless these days. I don't know her well enough to know where her restlessness will take her."

"Some screwy new idea, probably. She's a little nuts." He laughed. "That just about covers our mutual acquaintances, doesn't it, darling?"

She nodded, thinking, "Paula's little farmhouse is also a mutual acquaintance, Jud. But we didn't meet many people, it's true We were too busy falling quickly in love and getting married . . . getting married quickly, too, and secretly."

Jud took her to a night club where the motif was Spanish. It was crowded with "boys from the base," Jud explained as he and Temple ordered dinner. Several of the young men had spoken to him as he and Temple sought an isolated corner The girls, knowing her for a stranger and a girl "back home" eyed her critically.

"You like it here, don't you, Jud?"

"I love it I've had the cobwebs swept from my business man's brain I feel like a kid again Maybe it's because most of the boys are younger than I and I've taken their slant on things."

"An optimistic slant. I can see that."

He smiled. "But I keep my fingers crossed that I won't be shipped away. I'm happier than I've ever—" He stopped as though he had bitten in two the words he had intended to add . . . "Happier than I've ever been in my life except when I've been with you."

"I'm awfully glad But this is only a preparation, a training."

"Aren't you a bit premature?"

"Yes, I am. I'm sorry."

"Still my serious Temple, aren't you?"

She looked at him. "I haven't changed, Jud."

"You think I have? But I've changed for the better. Believe me, it's for the better."

"The better for me?" she thought, "The better for me, your wife? You haven't called me your wife, Jud. Are you afraid someone will hear you say it? In the car no one could hear."

They looked at each other across the table.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1942.

Commander-In-Chief Makes Report

TWO POINTS of outstanding interest covered by President Roosevelt in last night's fireside chat are:

1. Expression of belief that the selective service age minimum must be reduced to 18 years—which will immediately bring this subject before congress for action.

2. That every American is, in a sense, a part of selective service, and may—if found necessary—be assigned to essential war work.

The problem of securing sufficient farm labor was specially emphasized by the president, who said: "It is not that we do not have enough people in this country to do the job. The problem is to have the right numbers of the right people in the right places at the right time."

Opening on a note of optimism, with assurance of complete confidence in victory for the United Nations, President Roosevelt devoted his thirty-minute talk to a resume of observations during his recent cross-country trip, which, he made clear, was in his capacity as commander-in-chief of the nation's armed forces; summarized progress during the first ten months of United States participation in war; applauded the spirit of unity now being displayed; mentioned action being taken to prevent inflation; spoke sarcastically of "typewriter strategists" and gave assurance that war plans would be left to military leaders, and told parents the men in army, navy and marine corps are receiving the best possible training, equipment and medical care and that, "we will never fail to provide for the spiritual needs of our officers and men, under the chaplains of our armed services."

In conclusion, the president said: "We are united in seeking the kind of victory that will guarantee that our grandchildren can grow and, under God, may live their lives, free from the constant threat of invasion, destruction, slavery and violent death."

Amendment To Abolish 'Short Term'

NO ARGUMENT is being presented against an amendment to the Ohio constitution which is to be voted on at the November election.

The proposed amendment is intended to abolish judicial "short terms" which have confused voters in the past and which have sometimes placed unqualified persons on the bench for a six-weeks period between election and the first of next year.

As the constitution now directs, the governor appoints a judge to fill a vacancy until the next regular election, whereas, if the amendment is adopted, appointments will be made for the unexpired term in instances in which expiration of term is within one year immediately following election date.

This would also obviate the need of a candidate running for the six-weeks short term in addition to the regular term, as appearance of the same name twice on a ballot tends to confuse voters.

Women Workers In War Industries

REQUIREMENTS of war are opening more new fields of opportunity for women than would have been dreamed of in more settled times. Progress to eventual "equality" as wage earners had been slow, while competition dictated policy, although steady gains had been made for a half century or more in the fields of education and business.

There was a notable forward movement in the last war, when women entered many occupations formerly monopolized by men and gained full political rights. In the same period they won new freedom of dress and action generally. The next two decades brought them more and more into public life. They won admission to public offices, including municipalities, state legislatures and the United States congress, and won high places at the bar and on the bench.

Then, with the advent of the present war, came great surge of woman-power into military activity and innumerable other forms of public service and responsibility. The big step has come so suddenly, and yet so naturally, that its significance is yet hardly recognized. This is a moving of American women en masse into industries formerly reserved for men. They are now working in war factories by hundreds of thousands, and will soon be numbered in millions. This expansion involves a mastery of machinery to an extent formerly thought impossible.

And do the women regard this as an abnormal service? In their own words, they "just love it."

Names That Live In History

A COLLEGE recently asked its students to name the greatest man in history. The majority of votes was cast, naturally enough, for Julius Caesar, Alexander the Great and Napoleon, with Lincoln not neglected. A surprising number picked out world benefactors like Pasteur, the founder of modern medicine.

Such figures will endure when the memory of most public men has faded entirely. Characters like Hitler may survive in the popular memory only as people remember such characters as Judas, Nero, Benedict Arnold, and the like.

When Money Doesn't Mean Much

AN INCIDENT connected with sinking of the carrier Yorktown should not go unnoticed. The report tells that four marines were entrusted to carry $500,000 when they were leaving the sinking ship, but that they dropped the money to save the lives of five sailors trapped under wreckage.

The money was lost, but the lives were saved—and every American will applaud the decision to save lives instead of money.

Lieutenant-General Hunter Liggett, who ranked second only to Pershing in the A. E. F., remarked out of his experience in the last war: "As with men, so with nations. It is the fate of the indolent and the timid to see their rights become the prey of the active and the bold."

Harvard is opening courses for labor leaders, apparently anticipating need for at least a smattering of education for leadership of teachers' unions, and the like.

A soy bean sausage is now being marketed and it is suggested that this may turn out to be the missing link.

Byrnes and Norris Also Drafted

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Senator George W. Norris and Supreme Court Justice James F. Byrnes were conscripted for wartime duty about as literally as any doughboy.

Senator Norris

There was no make - believe about Senator Norris' desire to quit public life upon the expiration (with the current congress' adjournment) of his last term on Capitol Hill. At 81, he wanted to go home to Nebraska and stay there. He said so and undoubtedly meant it.

A supreme court berth is practically the acme of comfort and dignity. It has all of retirement's leisurely peace and permanency without characterizing its occupant as a back-number.

Senator Norris didn't change his mind as to his preference for a few final years outside Washington's political turmoil. However, when his Independent constituents petitioned his name onto their ticket again for November's election, with the explanation that he simply couldn't be spared in the present emergency, he yielded.

It was hardly necessary for Justice Byrnes to announce, as he did, that there's no imaginable office for which he'd have resigned from the supreme court in normal times. There practically isn't any other office except the presidency that could be a temptation to a supreme court justice. Justice Charles Evans Hughes did, indeed, resign to run for the White House, where he didn't land, but that was a miscalculation on his part.

Such Resignations Scarce.

Otherwise, since the 1700's, there hasn't been such a resignation except for age or infirmity.

Jimmie Byrnes (now that he's out of the supreme court, it's permissible to call him Jimmie, as it was when he was a mere South Carolina senator) gravitates, to be sure, into an exceedingly important post, as "director of economic stability."

In fact, commentators refer to it as as "assistant presidency."

Nevertheless, it carries with it nothing of the eclat that goes with the main job. Its incumbent won't go down very prominently in history.

There'll be nothing placid about it, either. Its essential purpose is to head off trouble, on its way to the White House. And if it makes itself popular, in the process, Jimmie'll have proved himself a wonder.

He's just starting in now, but the hollering will begin presently.

Jimmie undoubtedly knows it, but he was drafted.

Senator Norris' sacrifice, as an inductee, certainly won't be as considerable as Jimmie Byrnes'.

The senator's accustomed to rough-and-tumble. He's an Independent, anyway.

He hasn't been in retirement. He's pro-war (the present one, though he voted against 1917's American participation), so he can't be criticised for his today's attitude. And he doesn't care a hoot what folk may think of his attitude at the moment. The emergency being passed ultimately, he'll be in a position to retire indifferently, telling all hands to go chase themselves.

If he were infirm and decadent, it might be different.

He's as vigorous, though, as any man of 40. He doesn't bother with automotive transportation, but chases around Washington in a trolley car. He turns young whenever a subject interests him. And he's interested in a lot of subjects.

Listen World!

'Teen-Age' Training

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

(John HarHai, Columnist for a Day)

THAT high school youngster of yours with the fuzz barely starting on his chin and his nose still puppy soft and freckled . . . that boy who was a little tad just yesterday, who drifted off to sleep holding your hand—

SHALL UNCLE SAM TAKE AND TRAIN HIM FOR A SOLDIER?

There's a question which is wracking many a mother's and father's heart today. Each morning brings hundreds of letters in agonized protest against it— an equally sincere letters saying that it has to come . . . . absolutely necessary. I'm printing one of the latter today.

DEAR ELSIE ROBINSON:

Immediate mobilization of America's 18-and 19-year-old youth is imperative, if no other reason than to protect youth itself. They do not have enough time for practical and protective training when drafted at 20. The boys that are 18 could secure two years of training before they face the desperate realities of war.

Do not think I am indifferent to the sacrifice this entails, but this is certain—if the government gives this extra training to 18- and 19-year-olds in the immediate futures, there will be more lives saved, more boys returning home after the struggle, than if we wait until they reach their 20th birthday.

Since our young men have to go some day, why don't we give them all possible experience in warfare so they may have a better chance to defend themselves? Now is the time to act. In the past we've been too late. Let's not be too late now for it may cost thousands of precious lives.

And we may also remember this—under army training they will have far less chance to drift than they would in civilian life. They will be kept morally straight, mentally sound, and physically fit. The army will furnish a discipline and protection which their parents all too often fail to give them.

John Har Hai,
1410 Schoonmaker Ave.
Monessen, Pa.

I don't like to agree with that letter. I'm a mother myself and I've seen many a young rascal through his difficult 'teen years. Something in me yearns to keep those years as happy and safe as possible for every one of our boys. And yet I know that protection and pleasure can be insidious poisons, that they often wreck more young lives than they save. And so while I pray with all my heart that these youngsters of 18 and 19 may never see war, I would also be grateful if they could know, for a year or two, the wholesome discipline of military life and the sense of responsibility that goes with it.

We Americans knew that discipline once in private life. It was a natural part of our development. Now the machine age has eliminated it, has made us believe that youth should be coddled, saved from the struggles their parents experienced. And even before the war we saw the vicious consequences of such a philosophy.

THERE ARE TOO MANY JUKE BOXES IN AMERICA.

THERE ARE TOO FEW BUGLES.

WAR IS A DAMNABLE THING. BUT PEACE, WITHOUT STRUGGLE OR CHALLENGE, CAN BE EQUALLY DEMORALIZING.

AND SO I BELIEVE IT'S AS IMPORTANT TO MAKE YOUNG AMERICA WORTHY OF ITS LAND AND FIT FOR ITS SERVICE AS IT IS TO KEEP THE JAPS AND THE GERMANS OUT OF IT.

Character Building.

Not so long ago, when this country was feeling secure in its glorious isolation, character building agencies encountered sales resistance in their appeals for wherewithal. Character building sounded vague and inconclusive then.

These things have a way of switching around under the pressure the world is enduring now. The United States knows its isolation was a delusion. Citizens who keep abreast of current news also know that character building—what there was of it—was one of America's best preparations for war. They realize that unless everything possible is done now to minimize the increase of wartime juvenile delinquency the United States will regret its neglect, and that's character building, too.—Canton Repository.

Interpreting the War News

British Censorship Is Operated In Way To Keep Public Informed

—By DE WITT MACKENZIE

LONDON—The British censorship of news—which, to say the least, is one of the most liberal of the many under which I have worked in countries of both hemispheres—is based on the philosophy that the wartime morale of a nation is in direct ratio to the amount of information the public gets, especially from the battlefields.

Since this principle obviously is producing amazingly fine results in John Bull's domains, it encourages me to reiterate here the view I expressed not long before leaving New York on this trip.

It is this:

The way we Americans can get the real feel of the war, which up to now has been so far away from us, is to transport us through the press into the heat of battle. Let the home folk in spirit fight by the side of our boys and bleed with them and die with them. This may be achieved by reporting the news fully while it is hot—not in filtered form a week or a month after the ashes are cold. I quickly discovered that this is one of the tenets of the British censorship when I turned for enlightenment to Minister of Information Brendan Bracken and later to the chief censor, Rear Admiral G. P. Thomson.

Of course, one of the problems of Messrs. Bracken and Thomson is that the two are merely go-betweens for the armed services and the public.

That is to say, censorship of news relating to operations originates with the navy, army or air force. Now fighting branches are notoriously inclined to maintain silence. It thus becomes a matter of persuasion on the part of the ministry of information when one of the services gets sticky about giving up the news.

* * *

THERE is the most liberal interpretition of the rule excluding the publication of information which might aid the enemy. He is given full credit for having an intelligence service which keeps him well informed and the British public isn't made to wait unless it is obvious that circulation of news would do harm.

Bracken is a huge chap whose six feet of fighting-Irish is topped off by a cascade of such flamingly red hair that if you call him colorful you lay yourself open to a charge of punning.

I called the minister's attention to the fact that members of some armed services advocate creation of official reporters to cover the news. These reporters would be professional fighting men and would replace war correspondents now sent into the field by newspapers.

Bracken's broad shoulders heaved and his fiery crest bristled.

"Impossible!" he exploded.

"It wouldn't be fair to the public. And no man who isn't a trained and experienced journalist is capable of producing the report to which the people are entitled."

"We believe in giving the press freedom of expression. During the desert fighting in northern Africa, British correspondents in the field even criticized our command. They raised the devil with us back home. But we let them go ahead. We think they have the right to express their views."

Thomson is emphatic in support of the thesis that full access to the news is essential to maintain the morale of the people. He agreed, too, that officers couldn't be used successfully as war correspondents.

There is a debate in Britain at the moment as to whether it is vital to the morale of the fighting forces, as well as of the public, that they be kept fully informed of all angles of the war.

I asked the admiral how he felt about it.

"Decidedly it is essential," he replied.

"As a matter of fact, when I was in command at sea I used to give a lecture on world news to my crew every week."

We get an even better glimpse of this man who is conducting one of the most delicate and difficult jobs in the world when we are given the code under which he works.

Let him tell you himself:

"It would be best, I think, to keep the enemy in the dark about everything but if we did that it would mean keeping our own people in the dark and that would never do, for the people have the right to know what is going on around them.

"They have the right to draw their own conclusions, to criticize and to demand that what appears wrong to them should be put right.

"Between these two competing principles, the press censor is trying to produce a result which gives effect to them both."

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—If there is any doubt what influence the "will of the people" exercises on legislation, just recall the senate action on the anti-inflation bill.

In spite of the president's ultimatum that some satisfactory anti-inflation legislation would have to be passed immediately, the senate farm bloc was in the saddle.

In the early days of the battle, it appeared that the farm bloc, with its Thomas amendment ordering a redefinition of parity prices, couldn't be defeated.

Then on a single week-end the farm bloc balloon collapsed. The so-called "compromise" amendment was passed with only four dissenting votes and the original anti-inflation bill, sponsored by administration legislators, was voted unanimously—82 to 0.

BACK of this is another one of those heartening stories of the triumph of our democratic system. It is as cumbersome as an ox-cart on a superhighway. Often it appears just about that ridiculous. But whenever it tangles with any subject that arouses the real interest or ire of the public, it whips into line with the speed and drive of a modern tank.

As a matter of fact, the farm bloc fight collapsed even before the favorable vote on the Thomas parity amendment. That vote was "for the record"—proof in print that the senators who have to face their farm constituents had done their best.

Proponents of the amendment knew already that they were beaten. Why? Because the mail bags day after day gave proof of two things: (1) That the public in general was almost four-square back of the president in demanding legislation that would halt the spiraling cost of living; (2) That the farmers themselves weren't "het up" about a redefinition of parity. One of the big four farm organizations was, in fact, fighting with the administration.

SITTING here in Washington, watching the often tedious, day-to-day, hour-after hour maneuvering, the cloakroom and "for-the-record" politicking, it's easy to lose sight of the effectiveness of that intangible something called "public demand." But old timers here, hashing over the senate anti-inflation battle are saying again what they have said many times since this national emergency arose: Never before has public opinion been so quickly effective in ramming legislation through.

Actually, the anti-inflation scrap in the senate, in spite of all the thunderheads, was a pretty tame affair on the surface. Except for masterful speech in which Sen. Prentiss M. Brown, (D-Mich.), introduced the Administration bill, of which he was co-author, and the calm plea of Majority Leader Alben Barkley, there were no real verbal fireworks. A few of the senators, like George, Hatch, Ellender, Danaher and "Cotton Ed" Smith, did toss around a few sparklers, but there was nothing that could be called a display.

A Farmer's Diary

Parity In Action

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

(Second of Two Articles)

DICK found Tom in the field, directing the harvesting of the last few acres of spuds. It was a crisp red and gold October day. Dick watched the potato digger, tractor drawn, tear through the rows and saw smooth tubers gleam on top of the dark soil. A dozen or more workers, half of them women, stooped to the task of picking up the potatoes and carried them in wire baskets to a truck that followed along the rows.

Tom greeted his brother warmly, and they walked together toward the potato storage, which had been built into the hillside.

"Things have sure changed around here," remarked Dick. "If our old dad could see it, he'd scarcely recognize the place. I'm sorry to bother you when you're busy, but a matter has come up . . . frankly, they're saying things about you, up our way, because the prices of things to eat are going clear out of reason . . . and just now, with the war effort, and all" . . . he stammered and stopped.

Tom was looking at him. Tom's big brown fists were rammed into his pockets. His legs were like stocky pillars. He straightened his stooped shoulders. Never fluent, he seemed to wait an age before he spoke. Then his voice was gentle, tolerant, low pitched—and adamant.

"Well, yes—things change on the farm, like anywhere else," he said mildly. "Sometimes good changes, sometimes bad. Right now, a lot of our best workmen have been called up to the war, and we're short of experienced help. Looks like, from a selfish standpoint, it'd be good business to retire—just Bess and me—on a few acres, and take things easier. Time was when we'd have done it. Time was when every farm was independent. All a farmer aimed to do, them days, was feed himself and his own outfit of children and tenants. Whatever he couldn't produce for himself, he did without. We could do that yet. I s'pose us farmers could go back to 'hoss and buggy days' easier than most city folks.

"You factory fellows sold us machinery, a while back. Our boys went to school and learned how to keep books as well as you. We know when we're payin' out. What you and I need to do is to get things fixed so what each of us makes, to sell, will balance what he needs to buy!

"Did you know, Dick, that compared with 1914 when the country was prosperous, factory wages have multiplied three times—and the cost of living has gone up only 60 per cent—and the farmers' income only 7 per cent! What do you want us to do? We're not on a strike. We're working 60 or 70 hours a week and sending our sons to fight while our daughters run the farm tractors. We're growing all the hogs and cattle and grain and fiber our acres will yield, because that's our job!

"Your job has been to make clothes and machinery. Now you're making jeeps, guns and shells. Okay. You fit out the American army and we'll feed 'em—and feed you and ourselves and our allies—with maybe some left over for hungry Germans and Japanese when they oust their devilish war lords and begin to get sense. But don't let's you and me argue! The world needs us both—needs us free and fair and able to talk things through, like brothers oughta. All I've got to say is, go back and tell whoever's makin' that cheap talk to come out here and follow me around for a day! There — the load's comin' in — g'bye, come back sooner!" He put out his hard, calloused hand. His surprised brother took it.

"By golly," muttered Dick on his way back to town, "Who'd a thought it of ol' Tommy?"

Designer's Hats Show Contrast

Left, cloche with velvet bumper brim, beige broadcloth crown, green band; top, right, purple broadcloth and black jersey turban with passementerie and ball fringe trim; below, visor-beret in velour.

By SUSAN BARDEN
(International Illustrated News Writer

For the winter of 1942-43, fashions are being created to suit two worlds—the world of work and the world of relaxation.

And since a hat is the eternal expression of the feminine point of view, Lilly Dache's newest collection reveals that the hats fall more noticeably than ever before into two sharply defined groups, simple, firmly placed, beautifully modeled, but almost unadorned hats in which to work, and fabulous confections to fairytale loveliness in which to be ornamental.

Though expressed in two such divergent ways, the designer's general feeling about line is the same throughout the collection It is the forward jutting movement, carried still further since she first introduced it a year ago. The forehead is either covered closely by a pillbox, or deeply shadowed with a brim or chou of feathers

Show Smooth, Flat Hairline.

Soft bonnets, called capots, and new turbans still leave the face and forehead uncovered, but even these assume that the pompadour is a thing of the past, and show the hairline smooth and flat.

Hats for work are almost entirely untrimmed except for wide grosgrain bands around the crown, and for bright touches of color in long wool cords, designed to be tied under the chin, under the hair at the back, or criss-crossed around the throat like ballet slipper lacings. These cords are attached in a new way by knotting them through eyelets in the brim of the hat.

Passementerie makes its appearance as a trimming for hats to go with the new soft braided suits of the season

The hats in the above photographs show three different versions of the daytime hat, all designed by Mme. Dache.

The "wind cone" turban is made of purple broadcloth and black jersey intertwined It is decorated with passementerie and ball fringe trimming.

The cloche has a black velvet bumper brim and a beige broadcloth crown with a touch of bright green in the narrow band.

The third hat is the latest style of the perennially popular beret. This model has a visor and is held firmly on the head with a wide head band
